Revolvers, Bound Commander and Seized Liquor

NEW YORK, April 24.—A bootlegging scheme whereby liquor was smuggled into this country from Bermuda and Cuba on former submarine chasers, commanded by officers wearing the uniform of the United States navy has been unearthed. It was announced today at the customs house.

The former chaser 101, renamed Pindus, has been seized with her commander and crew of seven, the announcement stated.

Customs officials claimed to have received from the crew a story to the effect that pirates held up the chaser yesterday afternoon, 20 miles off Montauk Point, Long Island, boarded the craft with drawn revolvers, bound the commander and crew, and seized the chaser's cargo of liquor.

LOAN ORDER FOR $20,000

Order for Purchase of First Street Oval Now Up to

The city council tomorrow night will either accept or reject the loan order for $20,000 for the purchase of the first street oval property. The chances are all in favor of acceptance and the necessary steps for the borrowing of the money will immediately follow. As the acceptance of the city's offer by the Parks and Canals was with the provision that payment should be made within 60 days, it will be necessary to borrow all the money at once.

Just as soon as the loan order is adopted, Supt. John J. Kernan of the park department will begin whatever development of the area is possible this year. Also, he will confer with high school officials in an effort to launch a systematic campaign to secure funds for the erection of a stadium on the oval to be used for high school athletic purposes.

In connection with this, it may be interesting to recall what occurred in Haverhill when that city decided to build a stadium on a plot of eight acres on which a splendid athletic plant was built in 1916. The stadium there is well known by hundreds of Lowell people and its justification was established two years after it was erected.

A concrete fence encloses an area of 3 1/2 acres and the cost of the plant, including the fence, uncovered grandstand and a well graded field was $21,000. That was in 1916 and of course the cost today of a similar plant would be greater.

Of the $21,000 expended, $13,000 was raised by public subscription, $5000 was cleared by the Haverhill high school athletic association during the first two years of the stadium and $16,000 was taken over by the city on a bond issue. It is understood, however, that money now has been turned back into the city treasury and the bonds have been paid off.

The grandstand, which runs the entire length of the football field, seats 3200 persons, while there are movable bleachers capable of accommodating 500.

Inside in the enclosure there is a football field, a baseball field, quarter-mile running track with 100 yard straightaway and three tennis courts. Under the grandstand there are two locker rooms, two toilets and eight shower baths.

Haverhill's stadium is built on a tract of land only eight acres, while there are 12 acres in the first street oval property under consideration.

In a letter from Mayor Charles H. Troy of Haverhill, written to Supt. Kernan in 1920, he said:

"There is no doubt that the stadium built in 1916 has benefited the public and is very much appreciated and we know it has advertised the city."

LONDON, April 24 (by the Associated Press).—The Irish Free State was cut off from the outside world and even from Ulster today as a result of the great 24-hour general strike of labor against militarism in Ireland.

Telegraphic and telephonic communication had ceased, and all means of transportation apparently were halted.

One wireless set was working between military headquarters in Ulster and the Dublin headquarters, and since this was reported to be carrying only routine messages, it was assumed in Ulster that nothing untoward was happening in the south.

Meeting of New England
Conference Board of U. T.
W. Held in Maynard

Members of the United Textile Workers of America, who are employed in the various textile mills in the Merrimack valley, were given instructions yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the New England conference board of the U.T.W. of A. held in Maynard, to declare a strike as soon as notices are posted announcing of their a reduction in wages or longer hours.

The meeting was attended by delegates from Lowell, Lawrence, Manchester, N. H. and Maynard as well as by International President Thomas P. McMahon and other members of the executive board of the organization. Considerable business was transacted and reports on the various strikes in various textile centers were received.

WAR VETERANS SUBJECT TO POLL TAX

Every Lowell veteran of every war except the Civil war will be subject to a poll tax this year, with abatements of $3 for veterans of the Spanish and World wars provided that proper applications are made within 90 days from the date tax bills are received.

This means that all veterans of the Spanish and World wars will pay at least $2, with the G. A. R. members, alone, obtaining full exemption. Application blanks will be prepared by the board of assessors to be filed with the board by veterans seeking abatements. In the case of World war veterans, proof of receipt of the state's $100 bonus will be sufficient for a $2 reduction. Dates of enlistment and discharge also will be required.

This will make a great deal of extra work for the assessing department, but the rule has come from the office of the state tax commissioner.

First Penetration Asphalt

Job of Year in East Merrimack Street

Believing that at this season of the year the general public has more interest in the repair and construction of streets than in any other municipal activity and feeling that this interest has been intensified this year because of the fact that the street department has just begun to operate under its reorganized system, brought about by the change in charter. The Sun, from time to time will publish a resume of street work condensed in bulletin form, but nevertheless, attempting to cover all street operations in progress from day to day.

The first of this series is given herewith.

MONDAY, APRIL 24
First penetration asphalt job of year completed in East Merrimack street, from Nesmith to Park streets. 1650 square yards to be seal-coated tomorrow. According to Standard Oil Co., first penetration job to be finished in state this year. Excavation of Laurel street begun, preparatory to macadamizing Laurel street and Wentworth avenue, from Oakland square to Hovey street. Cold patch mixer installed at Anderson street and Belvidere, preparatory to work of patching Anderson street surface. Cold patch gangs on Pawtucket boulevard and on Varum avenue between Pawtucket square and boulevard entrance. Concentration of cold patch and sweeping street next Monday, preparatory to light oil sprinkling, which will start on Wednesday. Gangs at work patching gravel streets to be oil in Centralville and Belvidere. Plans being made in office of city engineer to begin excavating in Westford street next Monday for new sheet asphalt between Loring and Wilder streets.

MAYOR HOLDS UP PINK ORDER SLIPS

Claiming that the city is being charged 50, 75 and 100 per cent. more for certain supplies than the prevailing market price to an individual or an outside firm, a number of pink order slips are being held up in the office of the mayor, although the supplies in question have been delivered, it is said.

It was intimated today that the firms who have delivered the items included in the orders will have difficulty in obtaining their money from the city.

Items that are claimed to be excessive in price include lemon pie and raspberry pie fillings at 25c, purchased for the isolation hospital and also some mince meat and fresh pork. Against the price to the city of 25 cents on pie fillings, it is said in the mayor's office that investigation showed that the best brands of both flavors can be obtained for 9 1/2 and 12 cents. The city was charged 25 cents for mince meat and this can be purchased for 14 cents, it is alleged. Fresh pork was bought for 35 1/2 cents a pound, and it is claimed that on investigation it was found that 20 cents will buy the best loaf obtainable.

City Will Sustain Big Loss in Credits From State Corporation and Income Taxes

Because of general business depression and an appreciable decrease in the number of taxable individual incomes, Lowell will suffer a quarter of a million dollar loss this year in its credits from state corporation and income taxes.

According to an estimate received today from State Tax Commissioner Henry P. Long, Lowell's share of the income tax will be reduced by 25 per cent., while its proportion of the corporation tax will fall off a good 50 per cent. In round figures, this will mean $2 on the local tax rate, yet Mayor Brown reasserts that last year's rate of $3.14 will not be exceeded. He explains by saying that he allowed for decreases in both tax items when he prepared his budget, although he admitted today that he did not figure the corporation tax return at a reduction of 50 per cent.

Of the estimates of the tax commissioner develop into realities the results to Lowell will be that instead of the $107,211.97 received last year from income taxes, only $85,708.58 will be received, while last year's corporation tax credits amounting to $47,900.66, will be cut in half to $23,950.33, or a total loss of both items of $250,352.72. As it takes the expenditure of approximately $128,000 to add one dollar to tax rate, this sum equals about a $2 increase.

Not only are present business conditions responsible for the falling off in the corporation tax credits, but a new method of taxing corporations also is responsible in a measure. It used to be that corporations were subject to a franchise tax based on capital and at the state rate. The state rate is the average of all rates in cities and towns throughout the commonwealth and usually was between $24 and $25 per $1000 and a little lower than Lowell's rate.

Under the present system corporations are taxed only $5 per $1000 of capital, plus a tax of 1 1/2 per cent of profits, which in total does not amount to as much as was secured under the former system.

Individual incomes, also, have suffered along with business depression and there will be a material decrease in the number of incomes in the state on which tax will be paid this year.

Premier Poincare Outlines France's Position in Speech at Bar-Le-Duc

Farne to Act Alone, if Necessary, to Maintain Integrity of Versailles Treaty

BAR-LE-DUC, April 24 (by the Associated Press).—Premier Poincare announced in a speech here today, that if the French delegation at Genoa could not go ahead with its work under the agreed conditions, France would regretfully have to cease participation in the conference.

TO ENFORCE VERSAILLES PACT
BAR-LE-DUC, France, April 24 (by the Associated Press).—France will, if necessary, undertake alone to see that the treaty of Versailles is executed if the Germans default in their reparations payments. Premier Poincare intimated in an important speech before the general council of the department of the Meuse here today.

"The 31st of May, when the Germans must either accept the conditions laid down by the reparations commission or default in their payment, is an important date for France, said the premier. It is France's duty, he added, 'to full independence' to assume the duty of maintaining the integrity of the treaty."

"All we have ever asked and all we ask today, is the execution of the treaty," said M. Poincare, "and that we must have and shall have. The peace of Europe depends upon it. Our future and our national prosperity depend upon it."

"It is not by precipitate action or by decisions without reflection that we will obtain it. It is by persevering and methodical action. But it must be done."

The premier declared he ardently hoped for the co-operation of the allies in case Germany defaulted, "but according to the terms of the treaty," he added, "each may in case of need, have, respectively, such measures as are deemed necessary, and we shall not suffer if that our unfortunate country succumb under the burden of reparations, alongside of a Germany that does not consent to make the necessary effort to discharge her debts."

McMAHON TO ANSWER GREENE

Will Attempt to Show 20 Per Cent Wage Cut Unjustified

Also That Part of 22 1/2 P. C. Cut of Dec. 1920, Should Be Returned

LAWRENCE, April 24.—President Thomas P. McMahon of the United Textile Workers of America announced this noon that he will speak at a mass meeting on the common at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon and will at that time answer the speech made by Treasurer Edwin Parham of Greene of the Pacific mills at the Rotary club meeting last Thursday. In case of rain the meeting will be held in the city hall.

Mr. McMahon stated that he will attempt to show at that time, not only why the recent 20 per cent wage cut was unjustified, but also why part, if not all of the 22 1/2 per cent cut of December, 1920, should be returned to the workers.

Commenting on the apparent lack of interest in the schoolhouse meetings of the strikers during the last three days, Mr. McMahon said the workers were not interested in the demand for no compromise proposition.

He said that more than one-half of the relief cases cured for last week, were of strikers who are not members of the U.T.W. The local U.T.W. membership has now reached 2000, Mr. McMahon said.

START TO TRIAL DELAYED

120 Officers and Members of United Mine Workers of America Face Charges

CHARLESTOWN, W. Va., (By Associated Press).—The opening of the trial of 120 officers and members of the United Mine Workers of America for the part they are alleged to have taken in the march against the non-union Logan coal field last summer, was delayed more than half an hour this morning while court attaches arranged to seat the large gathering of defendants, counsel, witnesses and newspapermen.

The little Jefferson county district court room was crowded to capacity when the defendants filed in, and there was no room for persons not directly interested in the cases.

As soon as the arrangements had been made the charges of treason, murder, insurance, conspiracy to commit murder and larceny, aiding and abetting murder, were read.

DECISIONS BY U. S. SUPREME COURT

Manufacturers Must Use Trade Names and Labels With Description of Goods

Alien Property Custodian Cannot Be Forced to Surrender Bergdoll Property

Erwin Bergdoll's Application for Writ of Habeas Corpus Denied

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Manufacturers are required to use trade names and labels which will convey to the purchasing public an accurate description of the materials or ingredients composing their products, the supreme court today decided in a case brought by the federal trade commission against the Winsted Hosiery Co.

Justice Brandeis in delivering the opinion of the court upheld the authority of the trade commission to issue an order to the company to desist from certain practices, typical of the trade, particularly its label "Merino" as used in connection with knit goods, on the grounds that they constituted unfair competition. Justice McReynolds dissented.

Decision on Bergdoll Case
WASHINGTON, April 24.—Justice Bailey in the supreme court of the District of Columbia, today ruled that the alien property custodian cannot be required to surrender property of Grover C. Bergdoll, valued at $750,000 if the government proves that Bergdoll has been convicted of desertion and is now a fugitive from justice.

Application For Writ Denied
WASHINGTON, April 24.—The supreme court today denied the application of Erwin R. Bergdoll of Philadelphia for a writ of habeas corpus. Erwin, a brother of Grover C. Bergdoll, is now serving a sentence of four years in Leavenworth for failure to perform military service during the war and contended he was illegally convicted.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 24.—(By the Associated Press)—The capture of Sokio and Scalanova, about 40 miles south of Smyrna, Asia Minor, by Greek troops, was confirmed in a Turkish nationalist communique received here today. The Greek army has begun its advance southward. The Turks are rushing up troops in great numbers and heavy fighting is reported in the Italian zone.

LOWELL WOMAN IN LAWRENCE HOSPITAL

Mrs. Mary Kosciolek, of 688 Lakeview avenue, this city, is confined to the Lawrence General Hospital suffering from a compound fracture of the left leg and a fracture of the right ankle as a result of being struck by an automobile truck on the Lowell-Lawrence boulevard last evening. Her condition is not serious.

Mrs. Kosciolek was standing in the road waiting for an electric car in the early evening when an automobile truck operated by Charles D. Burns of 55 Arlington street, Lawrence, came along and struck her a glancing blow, throwing her forcibly to the ground. The machine then climbed over an embankment and turned turtle, but fortunately the driver escaped injury.

Shortly after the accident Harry J. Roche of Long Pond road, Braintree, and Ralph Connor of 215 Hale street, this city, while on their way to Lawrence, saw the woman lying in the road. They picked her up and removed her to the corner of Essex street and Broadway in the down-river city, where she was

TRIAL OF MRS. RAIZEN IS POSTPONED

NEW YORK, April 24.—Trial of Mrs. Lillian Raizen, charged with the murder of Dr. Abraham Gluckstein in his Brooklyn office, has been indefinitely postponed, pending the report of a commission which has been examining her sanity. District Attorney Kuntz announced today.

Burns stated later that the accident occurred when he became blinded by the headlights of an oncoming electric car. He said he did not see the woman until it was too late and it was his attempt to avert the collision that caused his machine to swerve and climb over the embankment. The auto was badly damaged.

It was learned in this city last night that Mrs. Kosciolek left her home early in the afternoon to look over a vacant tenement on Christian hill and it is believed that after her mission had been accomplished, she cut across the fields to the nearest corner bar. Her husband was informed of the accident by Sgt. Kennedy last evening and he left immediately for the down-river city.

PATROLMEN TO BE COMMENDED

At all roll calls of the police department either tomorrow or Wednesday, Officers Paul Spillane and William Linton will receive official commendation by the acting superintendent, because of their arrest, early Friday morning, of William J. Sternberg, the Donovany building and other downtown blocks.

A letter has been received by Supt. MacFarlane from Ricard & Smith, whose office in the Mansur block was entered, extending their thanks and congratulations to the department for the very prompt and efficient service rendered on the occasion of the robbery. The communication states that Officer Spillane is deserving of special mention for his alertness and general conduct. A check for the Police Relief association to the amount of $10 was enclosed.

REAL ESTATE TRANSFER
The property at the corner of Andover street and Fayette street, owned by Harry Wheeler, has been sold to Benjamin Alford of Lawrence. The property consists of a building containing six stores and six tenements and about four square feet of land and is assessed for $12,000.

CAME TO LOWELL FIFTY YEARS AGO

Just fifty years ago today, Mr. Patrick O'Hearn, the well known contractor, came to Lowell, and his career in Lowell has been marked by unusual success, brought about solely by his tireless energy, his manifest willingness to work early and late and his thorough knowledge of his business.

Some of Lowell's most imposing buildings were built by Mr. O'Hearn or under his direction, one of the finest being the Lowell Textile school, which is recognized as the best of its kind in the country. Other buildings erected by him are the Amosato building, the high school, Southwick block, Appleton bank building, Faulkner castle, buildings of the Harvard Brewing Co., Talbot Memorial building at North Hillerden, several of the mills of the Appleton Co., several Lowell school buildings and many other structures in Lowell and elsewhere. He has had a most interesting career in Lowell, and a chat with him finds him an engaging person indeed, interesting in many ways and a high-minded citizen. For years he was identified with the old Lowell board of trade and was an energetic member of its board of directors and while he has been urged to become a candidate for public office, he has declined, believing that one can be of valuable service as a private citizen.

MISSING GIRLS FOUND

Two Students Who Fled Northfield Seminary Located in Fitchburg

FITCHBURG, April 24.—A one week's search by frantic families and a greatly perturbed faculty at Northfield seminary in Northfield ended here yesterday morning when Miss Emma Safford, aged 22, of Pawtucket, R. I., and Miss Bernice Hollinshead of South Bend, Ind., were taken into custody by Fitchburg police as they chatted with white-coated attendants in a Main street lunch room. The wild adventure of the two girl students who it was believed had been abducted, ended insignificantly when they were taken home by thankful but angry representatives of their families. The girls were unrepentant and declared they didn't care what happened so long as they were not obliged to return to school.

John Jalkala, aged 20, and Clarence Barle, aged 18 of Gardner, the two young "abductors," seemed surprised when informed of the fate of their two girl friends and they willingly returned to Chief of Police Shea a diamond ring belonging to Miss Hollinshead which the girl had given them they said as security for a loan of $25.

Bored to desperation by the discipline at the seminary, founded by the late Dwight L. Moody and where bobbed hair, silk stockings and other feminine conceits are not only frowned upon but forbidden, the two young girls fled the dormitory in company with two strange young men without an extra hairpin and with a total bank roll of 73 cents.

At three o'clock yesterday morning, Patrolman William H. Grant came upon the two girls in the Fitchburg lunch room and on orders of Sprague William E. Jackett he ordered them taken to the station. At the station the girls freely confessed their identity. Families were notified and Mr. A. Hollinshead, a brother, who had been anxiously awaiting some word of encouragement in Northfield, journeyed here by automobile and took his sister home on the next train out. Ernest Sellow, prominent business man of Pawtucket, R. I., foster father of the Safford girl, called for her late in the afternoon and took her home by automobile. There will be family councils in both homes, it was stated authoritatively.

HAT STILL CHIEF MURDER CLEW

Officers at Work on Brewster Case Again Turn Attention to New Hampshire

Other Officers Seek Swarthly Man Reported Seen Near Ticket Office

WINCHESTER, April 24.—Investigation into the murder of Ralph W. Brewster, the station agent who was shot and killed in his office here last Thursday evening, reverted to New Hampshire today with a wit and pepper cloth hat picked up near the station as the chief clue. The police, after eliminating from the case a young man whom they questioned at Chichester, N. H., last Saturday, were off on another track today with the hat as their guide.

Meanwhile, preparations were being made for Brewster's funeral at Pittsfield, N. H., his former home, this afternoon. Statements of several persons who said they saw a "swarthly" man leave the neighborhood of the station at about the time of the murder, gave the local and state officers opportunity for investigation throughout this district. All persons who knew Brewster during his brief period of residence here, are now believed to have told the police all they know concerning him.

For Disbarment of Pelletier

In the removal proceedings, Pelletier said, "Further words from me would be fruitless and only put me in the position of playing a part in a mock trial." The proceedings lasted less than 15 minutes. Justice Carroll presided.

Mr. Pelletier in the statement which he read said that nothing he could say would affect the court's decision given in the previous case. The court, he declared, was foreclosed and he was foreclosed.

"That the testimony in my other case did not justify the findings was the contention of my distinguished attorney, Hon. James A. Reed, and I must earnestly so maintain today," Mr. Pelletier said.

The evidence given by you to the courts, justices and juries so well described by my attorney as the "Hogues" gallery, I insist, was unwarranted. Their testimony is now in evidence in this case and, of course, your Honor must give the same credence to them as in the other case.

"In that case there was proof only of the exercise of official discretion, similarly used in a thousand cases, universally exercised by every district attorney; an endeavor to do what seems best under all circumstances as he sees them, sometimes upon information that is secret, sacred and never to be divulged; an effort to salvage wrongdoers from the wreck of prison sentence and especially first offenders; a desire to protect reputations and innocent families and to abort attempted blackmail by vampires—in a word, a desire to promote and protect the public good and whenever possible to keep the community clean and free from scandal and distress.

"From your exalted position your Honor may follow the procedure of the full bench and characterize such official discretion in the extraordinary language of censure and condemnation used by it. I am, of course, powerless to control your statement already made but I cannot escape the feeling that certain charges not filed but openly referred to in court may be the cause of such extravagant action."

In the removal proceedings Pelletier was charged in several instances with conspiracy to extort large sums of money from various persons, and with having failed to prosecute in certain instances from improper motives.

Daniel H. Coakley, an attorney ordered disbarred last week by the supreme court, was named as a co-conspirator in several of the allegations.

Judge Carroll took the petition for disbarment of Pelletier under advisement.

To Fix Date for Tufts' Hearing
Atty. Leland Powers, representing the Middlesex County Bar association asked Judge Carroll to fix a date for hearing the disbarment petition against Nathan A. Tufts, who was removed as district attorney last summer on charges of misconduct in office. Judge Carroll said he would take the request under advisement.

CHURCH HONORS ORGANIST KERSHAW

At the First Baptist church last evening, due recognition was made of the completion of 25 years of service as an organist by Wilfred Kershaw, who for the past 11 years has sat at the keyboard of the instrument there and who, previously had played in other local churches to round out his quarter-century as a church musician.

Not only did Mr. Kershaw, himself, mark the event by an excellent organ program, but the entire service was given over to appreciation of his work, and the pastor, Rev. Edward Babcock, spoke glowingly of his service to the church. The choral union of the church presented the organist a beautiful basket of red roses that were placed on the console as he played.

TO INSPECT WATER PLANT

F. A. Barber of Boston, the consulting engineer retained by the city when the filtration plant was built on the boulevard, is expected in Lowell tomorrow, with a Mr. Jergen, a construction engineer from Sweden, to make an inspection of the local water plant. They will be accompanied by City Engineer Stephen Kearney and the visiting engineer will have the scope and type of the Lowell system.

CARD. O'CONNELL WARMLY GREETED UPON HIS RETURN FROM ROME

Boston Prelate Welcomed at New York by Large Committee, Including Several From Lowell--Says All Europe Looking to America "to Settle Things"--Pays High Tribute to New Pope

NEW YORK, April 24.—William Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston, arrived home from Rome yesterday morning, leaving the steamship Arabic of the White Star line at pier 59, North river, about 10 o'clock. The landing was somewhat later than had been expected, owing to the strong tide, which gave half a dozen tugs a hard time warping the big Mediterranean liner into her berth.

A reception committee of some 25 church and laymen was at the pier to welcome the cardinal and, during the hour that the ship was being moved back and forth in the effort to get her tied up, the cardinal waved his acknowledgments of salutes as he stood on the saloon deck.

With him were Msgr. M. J. Spina, P.R. of St. Joseph's church, Roxbury, and Msgr. Richard J. Haberlin, the cardinal's secretary. Dr. John R. Slattery, superintendent of St. Elizabeth's hospital, who accompanied the cardinal on the trip, also was with the returning party.

All Want America In
Cardinal O'Connell declared that everyone in Europe wanted America to enter the arena of world affairs and "to settle things."

"Will she? Can she? Ought she?" he asked. "I still cannot answer. Truly, however, what she can do, she must find a way to do. For Europe is clearly at the end of her resources. Either Europe will join all her forces and put aside hatred and distrust, or Europe for a generation will sit amid ruins."

"The bravery of Italians in the face of present conditions," he added, "is nothing short of heroic. Everybody was looking forward to the Genoa conference with hope, but occasionally I heard the skeptical comment, 'Wait and see.'"

"Everybody knows that while these mutual suspicions and hatreds and distrusts are kept up, nothing will come but worse conditions—more poverty and more disorder, with possible anarchy."

"But who is going to change this attitude of unfriendliness and distrust? It is a moral problem. Who can solve it? The church. But who is listening to the church among the ruling classes? They are listening, on the contrary, to the stump speeches which every sane man knows to be rubbish."

Voyage of Two Weeks
The cardinal was well pleased to be back. He was on board ship more than a fortnight, having started from Naples, after which the Arabic went to Alexandria and then headed for this country. The voyage home was very unfavorable, storms and high winds occurring practically every day. Added to this were high seas.

On the way over the Holy Week period was passed, and the purser, J. W. O'Hagan had a temporary altar erected in the saloon, and every day during Holy Week the cardinal officiated at mass, as he did on Easter morning.

The steamship carried a heavy cargo and was two days late in making port.

The cardinal was greeted at quarantine by a number of Boston newspapermen, to whom he gave out an interview. He then chatted about various subjects, and being asked what his immediate plans were, said that he proposed going to the Gotham hotel, where he would spend the balance of the day and evening, and start for Boston Monday morning, arriving late in the afternoon.

The arrangements for the formal reception by the League of Catholic

Women will be decided upon some time early in the week and will probably be next Sunday in the Boston Opera House.

After the long delay in warping the Arabic into her berth, the cardinal came ashore and greeted individually the monsignori, priests and laymen who were awaiting him. He had a few pleasant words with each one and gave confirmation to the recent reports concerning the elevation of several Boston priests to become monsignors, by greeting Rev. Fr. Arthur T. Connolly of Jamaica Plain as "Monsignor."

This was the first official word the new monsignors had of their advancement. Three of them were at the pier, Msgr. Haberlin, his secretary, who went aboard with the cardinal, and Msgr. Joseph P. McGlinchey and Msgr. Arthur T. Connolly of Jamaica Plain, who were in the receiving line.

The other Boston priest to be honored on the occasion of the cardinal's visit to Rome was Msgr. Richard Neagle, P.R. of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Maiden.

Despite the two weeks on shipboard the cardinal looked very well. He was slightly tanned by the sea air, as were his traveling companions. When he had greeted the Boston visitors the cardinal addressed them briefly. He said that it was, indeed, a great pleasure to him to find so many of his priests and people awaiting his arrival.

He said that such a remembrance impressed him very much, even more than he could tell, and he wanted all to know that their interest was very highly appreciated.

"There is little that I can say to you that you do not already know," the cardinal continued. "I, of course, am all glad to be back home again. We had a pleasant voyage going over, but the weather was bad on the return trip."

The New Pope

In his interview with the newspaper men at quarantine, the cardinal in speaking of the new pope said:

"The new pope, was acclaimed in Rome with great applause. In fact his election seems to be a particularly happy choice. Though not much known personally, his general character of high intelligence and conciliatory disposition seem just the qualities needed at the present moment in Europe, and all Europe welcomed him to his great task."

"I saw him several times and talked with him at great length. The traits which struck me as the dominant notes of his makeup are vigor of mind and body. His outdoor life has produced excellent results. He is very calm and deliberate and seems very gentle and yet firm. I felt more and more that he had the same amiable nature of heart as dear Pius X."

"He seems one who can suffer much silently and not become embittered. That is a wonderful trait in a pope. He is unpretentious, he is eager to be informed and says little. He is a man of many parts. He will not be lulled by the facile nor lax. He is one of those rare souls who can be pious and not intolerant. All in all he seems a wonderfully well balanced character, not led by whims and not to be driven at all."

"Pius XI, if God spares him, amid so many difficulties, will have a record of substantial accomplishments—not spectacular, perhaps, but genuine."

Depressed, But Hopeful

"I found the European churchman somewhat depressed but hopeful. Vienna and Graz looked saddened and aged. No wonder. Cardinal Pirri and Cardinal Grassano, as well as the cardinal of Cologne and Munich, were overflowing with gratitude for all that America has done for the poor and suffering of their countries."

"What of Europe? Alas, things are very very bad—not so much so on the surface for apparently there is gaiety enough—whistling to keep up courage."

"The bravery of the Italians in the face of present conditions is nothing short of heroic. Everybody was looking forward to the Genoa conference with hope. But occasionally I heard skeptical comments 'Wait and see'—mere talk and more dinners and for the rest nothing."

"Everybody knew that while these mutual suspicions and hatreds and distrusts are kept up nothing will come but worse conditions, more poverty and more disorder with possible anarchy."

"But who is going to change this attitude of unfriendliness and distrust? It is a moral problem, who can solve it? The church—but who is listening to the church among the ruling classes. They are listening, on the contrary, to the stump speeches which every sane man knows to be rubbish."

Italian Patient

"I have heard that Europeans were grumbling at American aloofness. In Italy I did not hear this. Italians as far as I saw and heard them are wonderfully patient and not embittered. They naturally wish that there were less stump speeches and more real action but they are between two fires and can only be calm which in the main they are."

"The long government crisis was a great trial in their patience. But Pacha at least came forth. He won the chaos and there is hope that his name is a good omen. Europe is tired of mere words and wants deeds."

"At all the various ports which we touched, seven in all, the shipping was all tied up—boats rusting at the wharves. We met almost no boats carrying anything but tourists. It was depressing. No interchange of trade, even the tourists purchased little of any value. Depression everywhere and everyone hoping and waiting with a waning patience."

"Everyone in Europe wants America to enter the arena and settle things. Will she? Can she? Ought she?"

"I still cannot answer."

"Surely, however, what she can do she must find a way to do. For Europe is clearly at the end of her resources. Either Europe will join all her forces and put aside hatred and distrust or Europe for a generation will sit amid ruins."

Lowell Men Present

The official welcoming committee consisted of monsignori, priests and laymen of the Boston diocese, including Mr. William O'Brien, Humphrey O'Sullivan and Edward O'Connell, brother of the cardinal, from Lowell.

TOMORROW'S FLAPPER IS DEMURE TODAY

In these years that fall between toddler and flapperdom, the demure school days, little girls are not cruelly abandoned and neglected by Dame Fashion. Indeed, some very charming modes are evolved just for the betwixt-and-between little girl of eight or nine or ten.

A quaint frock is one with a square neck, a straight and severe little bodice, leading primly up the front, and a full gathered skirt stitched to the bodice and worn without girle or belt of any description. For a slender little girl this short-waisted model is interesting because of its very simplicity.

An idea borrowed from her mother's newest frock is the long-waisted effect and the clever scheme of bringing a little up-and-down fullness into soft little folds on the under-arm seam. This is equally effective in jersey frocks, which are so much liked for school frocks for girls, or in other soft materials.

TRADING IN BOSTON, NO. 3.

What is the Matter With Lowell? IS IT AN OUT-OF-TOWN TOWN?

Some time ago there was a question of a Slogan for Lowell. Out of the discussion came some ad such as "If you buy out of town and we buy out of town, what will become of our town?"

We wrote some comment on this slogan at the time, but did not publish it. But as it fits in with the series of ads we have published lately about buying in Boston, we give it to you without a change of word. We wrote that it was a poor Slogan. That it had the poor mouth sound to it. That a Slogan to be effective must have an exultant, victorious, triumphant, conquering sound to it. (Oh! for an inspiration to coin one!) Of course, one might say many things in favor of even this poor slogan. It might awaken some people who are not too egotistical to say to themselves, if not to others: I earn my living in Lowell and will spend my money in Lowell. It might awaken some people to at least look over the stock of Lowell merchants before buying in Boston. And there is such a thing as loyalty to your city. And if Tom, Dick and Harry buys of you or employs you or is the source of your income, don't you feel just a little less than loyal when you take that money to Boston to spend for goods Tom, Dick and Harry has in his store, without even asking them their price, and don't you feel mighty cheap when you find that your loyal neighbor has bought the same goods of Tom, Dick and Harry for less than you paid in Boston, which is a fact nine times out of ten. No, they don't sell cheaper in Boston because they can't. The cost of doing business is too much more to be offset by larger volume. Per cent of expenses to per cent of sales absolutely prevents it. The sheer force of inexorable economics prevents it. And yet, some people buy out of town, industries go out of town for managers, fellows go out of town for girls, when we have the finest in the world right here in Lowell. And you have the best and fairest dealing Furniture Store anywhere to fit up a home for her in.

MANY PEOPLE HAVE BEEN CONFUSED

It has been brought to light that hundreds of men and women in Lowell and vicinity have attempted to purchase Allen's Lung Healer, through the recommendation of friends, and because their druggists was not an agent for this preparation, they have been sold another article, similar in name but of inferior quality, in place of the genuine.

These people, because of the similarity in name have in many instances thought they were using Allen's Lung Healer when such was not the case. They have not obtained the results from the substitute that they had been led to expect from the genuine.

It is most unfortunate that so many have suffered from this experience, and been disappointed. If you are one of them, please understand that there is only one Allen's Lung Healer, made by H. J. Allen & Co. of West Long, Mass., and that no other cough remedy is made or sold by this concern.

In the future be sure to get ALLEN'S LUNG HEALER and accept nothing similar in name. Look for the orange container. One a bottle—only one size, 6 ounces.

Sold in Lowell by A. W. Dows Co., Lowell Pharmacy, F. J. Campbell, L. B. Brunelle, J. J. Brown, H. R. Campbell, Fred Jones, Wm. H. Noonan, H. C. Page, L. T. Steeves and T. C. Walker.

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated women for liver and bowel ailments. During those years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are found everywhere on the liver and bowels, which cause a ruddy complexion, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system. If you have a pale face, yellow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headache, indigestion, nervousness, all out of sorts, irritable bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets; the success of this treatment for color—now and then put to rest their ill, the and doc.

1922 Version of Man Without a Country

THE "RUSSIAN EMBASSY" AND BORIS A. BAKMETEFF, "AM-BASSADOR"

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Being a diplomat without a government has its advantages over being a mere man without a country.

Witness the Honorable Boris Bakmeteff.

The state department, which has refused recognition to the Soviet government, still accords Bakmeteff recognition.

At the office of DeWitt C. Poole, chief of the division of Russian affairs of the state department, it was said that: "We are in frequent communication with Mr. Bakmeteff."

At the embassy it is explained that Bakmeteff's labors for the past four years have been in "liquidating" the affairs of Russia in America, and "representing" the interests of the "Russian people." This latter, it is Russian people, is deemed to be wholly distinct from the interests of the Soviet government.

Bakmeteff's chief labors in "liquidating" Russia's affairs here have been effecting settlement of contracts for war supplies made by Russia prior to Nov. 7, 1917. For most part this has been done out of the $187,729,750 advanced by Uncle Sam to Russia before the Bolsheviks seized control of the government, and by the sale of Russian munitions and supplies to the other allies during the last year of the war.

U. S. Watchdog Funds

Uncle Sam, however, has exercised close supervision of disbursements from the amount of the government loan.

Of the $187,729,750 advanced by Uncle Sam, there remained on deposit at the time of the overthrow of the Kerensky government, $86,000,000. That, it is stated, has now been practically all drawn out.

Although the staff of the embassy has been reduced to merely a counselor and two secretaries, the big embassy building is maintained with a corps of servants and attendants reminiscent of the old days before the overthrow of the czar.

Just where the finances for the maintenance of the embassy are derived is one of the "diplomatic secrets" into which it is not diplomatic to inquire. However, one is given to understand it is a necessary expense properly to be met out of the proceeds of "liquidating" the affairs of pre-revolutionary Russia.

And speaking of "liquidating," continued recognition as ambassador from Russia carries with it the privilege of bringing in, under diplomatic immunity, liquids otherwise barred by the Volstead law.

Which is in many minds, an added reason why being a diplomat, even without a government, is a status greatly to be desired.

APPEAL FOR NEAR EAST RELIEF FUNDS

According to circulars distributed throughout the city the formal appeal for funds for the Near East relief bazaar today. Local people have already responded to the amount of $500 with the pupils of the high school contributing $125.

The text of the circular is as follows: To the people of Lowell:

The cry of the starving children in Armenia and the Near East is still coming to our ears and out of approximately 250,000 orphans who are in utter destitution, the Near East relief is only able to care for 110,000 because of insufficient funds.

Dr. James L. Parton, the national chairman, telephoned us yesterday: "Am engaged in gruesome task of reducing appropriations to the field, thus condemning to death many whom we have thus far saved."

Herbert Hoover says: "In the Near East for millions of children there is nothing to eat but clay and grass."

All these children are the remnants of those brave, loyal races who have suffered untold miseries at the hands of the Turks because they were Christians and fought on the side of the allies.

These children are absolutely dependent on us—Americans.

There is no need of harrowing your feelings by repeating the tales of horror which you have heard so often, but are convinced of the imperative need the Lowell committee desires to enlist your hearty co-operation because they of immediate contribution to this cause.

$5 will feed one child for one month, $10 will feed one child for one year. $100 will feed one child, shelter and train one child for one year.

Won't you please respond as liberally and as promptly to this appeal as possible as the demand is very urgent. Let Lowell's watchword be: "They shall not perish."

Make all checks payable to the Near East Relief and send to Ivan O. Small, treasurer, Union National bank, Lowell, Mass.

Samuel H. Thompson, chairman. Executive committee: Otis W. Butler, Donald M. Cameron, Herbert W. Horne, Walter H. Hoyt, Hugh J. May, Robert E. Marden, Dudley L. Page, George Topliss.

ODD FELLOWS WILL HOLD ANNIVERSARY

The 102nd anniversary of the founding of odd fellows will be observed in a fitting manner by the three local lodges of the order next Saturday. The event will consist of a business session in Colonial hall, Middlesex street, in the afternoon, which will be attended by the members of the three lodges, and a public gathering at the same place in the evening. The evening's program will consist of an entertainment and address by prominent speakers including the grand officers of the state lodge. The committee in charge of arrangements is composed of members of Highland Valley, Quinlan and Centralville lodges.

DISTRIBUTE BRITISH VICTORY MEDALS

The British victory medals are to be distributed in Lowell within the month. Frank Miller of a Clinton avenue, has just received his, which will be added to the Mona star, previously awarded him.

Private Miller served with the first 100,000 as the Mona star indicates. He was awarded in the first days of the war and after recovering was wounded at the second battle of Ypres. He finished his service in an airplane factory. He came to this city about 12 months ago.

SEVERE ECZEMA ON FACE NECK

Arms and Limbs. In Pimples. Could Not Rest. Cuticura Healed.

"I had a very severe case of eczema which started with small pimples that festered and scaled over. The pimples were scattered all over my face, neck, arms and limbs, and were so painful that I could not rest at night."

"The trouble lasted about a year. A friend gave me a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment which helped me so much that I bought more, and after using three cakes of Soap and three boxes of Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Miss Lena Robinson, Box 95, Norwich, Vt., Aug. 4, 1921.

Doctor at 82 Finds Mothers Prefer His Formula to New-Fangled Salts And Coal Tar Remedies for Babies

Judgment of 1892 vindicated by world's approval of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a simple vegetable compound for constipation—So safe thousands give it to babes in arms—Now has largest sale in the world.

WHEN a man is in the 83rd year of his age, as I am, there are certain things he has learned that only time can teach him. The basis of treating sickness has not changed since I left Medical College in 1875, nor since I placed on the market the laxative prescription I had used in my practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of my Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of Egyptian Senna and other mild laxative herbs with pepsin.

Recently new medicines have been brought out for constipation that contain calomel, which is mercury, salts of various kinds, minerals, and coal tar. These are all drastic purges, many of them dangerous, and the medical profession is warning the public against them. Certain coal tar products will depress the heart; certain salts give rise to intestinal poisoning, impaction and rupture of the intestines. If grown people want to use them no one can deny them the privilege, but they should never be given to children.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with pills and powders and strong drugs, even if disguised in candy? My remedy, too, costs less than most others, only about a cent a dose. A bottle such as you can find in any drug store, will last a family several months, and all can use it. It is good for the babe in arms because pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In the proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially ideal.

The formula of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is on the cover of every bottle, and the ingredients have the endorsement of the U. S. Pharmacopoeia.

MARY GARDEN RESIGNS Quits as Director General of Chicago Grand Opera Company

CHICAGO, April 24.—Mary Garden announced last night her retirement as director general of the Chicago Grand Opera Co., a position which she has held for the past year.

"I am an artist and I have decided that my place is with the artists, not over them," she declared in a statement which was taken as an indication that she would remain with the organization as a singer.

"When Mr. Harold McCormick bestowed the honor on me, naming me director general of the Chicago Opera Co., the statement continued, 'I was understood that I would hold the position for a year; which meant the end of the reign of grand opera in Chicago under Mr. and Mrs. McCormick.'

"The tower of artistic strength which is the Chicago Opera Co., is beginning its new life under the guidance of a very worthy man, Mr. Inghill, and, thank God, no one will be able to 'put anything over' on him. His thoughts are American, his decisions are American, and that is what we, the organization have never had. Mr. Inghill and the opera company have in me a local soldier, ready to serve them in whatever capacity they see fit."

The statement ended with a postscript declaring: "This is my authorized statement and the only one."

COOLIDGES DRIVEN OUT

Fire in New Willard Hotel, Washington, Causes Guests to Flee—All Escape

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Vice-President Coolidge, several members of the senate and house of representatives and many other persons prominent in public, business and social life, were among some 600 guests of the New Willard hotel who were routed out of their beds early yesterday morning to the fire which swept the top floor of the 10-story building.

The blaze had its origin in the ballroom on the 10th floor, where a few hours before President Harding, Mr. Coolidge, members of the cabinet, senators and representatives, foreign diplomats and others had sat around the banquet board as guests of the Gridiron club at its annual spring dinner and frolic. The fire was confined to that floor and the roof above, but tons of water poured into the flames second through to the floors below, causing much damage.

There naturally was some confusion and excitement as hotel attendants, policemen and firemen pounded on doors and the telephone operator on duty called room after room, but all those in the hotel got out of their apartments to the corridors and lobbies in safety. Many went to other hotels, carrying at least part of their baggage with them, but scores remained at the New Willard and returned to their rooms after the fire had been extinguished.

How the fire started may never be determined, but one theory is that a cigarette or cigar stump cast aside at the close of the Gridiron dinner found a bed of heavy drapery. It was 5.45 o'clock when a passing policeman noticed smoke coming from the tenth floor window. He turned in an alarm and then rushed into the hotel, informing the night clerk.

WIRELESS EXPERTS FORSEE MARINE RADIO WITHOUT AERIAL

By N.E.A. Service
WASHINGTON, April 24.—Radio communication with ships at sea without the use of aerials may soon be accomplished.

This advancement is suggested by government and private wireless experts here who have been working to simplify radio transmitting and receiving apparatus.

That it is a possibility has been demonstrated at recent tests made by Maj. Gen. George O. Squier, in charge of the United States army air service. At these experiments, General Squier showed he could receive radio signals over land without using any antenna.

Land Line as Aerial
Instead of catching the wireless waves by means of a special aerial, General Squier attached the radio receiving set to an electric light line. The land line acted as his aerial.

In the same way, experts here suggest there is a possibility of sending and receiving radio messages over sea with no antenna to transmit or receive them.

In fact, progress has already been made toward eliminating ship antennas.

A few years ago, submarines were handicapped by the clumsy masts and wires they had to carry for their antennas. In submerging, these aerials had to reach above the surface. They were easy tell-tales for enemy craft during the war.

Aerial Below Water

By experiment and research, government wireless engineers found a way to bring the aerial under the surface with the submarine, so that nothing but the periscope showed. They had found that radio waves could travel just as well through water as through air. The latest type submarine now has its antenna stretched close to the deck, without any masts or cross-arms to hinder it in submerging.

Now the radio experts are considering the electric lines with the submarine or ocean liner, which might be used to catch radio signals as effectively as the land electric light lines.

RADIO RECEIVING SETS

Bureau of Standards Says

Elimination of Storage

Battery Now Possible

Elimination of the storage battery, the most expensive part of the home made radio receiving set, is now possible according to the bureau of standards of the department of commerce in a statement released today.

The receiving sets which are now used in receiving radio signals, music, etc., over distances of perhaps hundreds of miles require a storage battery to light the filaments of the electron tubes. The battery must be charged from time to time, it is bulky and heavy, the acid in it is a source of danger and damage to the household and altogether it constitutes a drawback to the general use of radio sets.

The receiving set developed by the bureau of standards makes connection with the ordinary electric lamp socket. The set may be used with any type of antenna, i. e., with the ordinary elevated wire antenna, a coil antenna, or special forms of antenna. By special modes of connection, it is even possible to use the electric light wires themselves as the antenna, but the signals are likely to come in with less strength when this is done.

The receiving set consists essentially of an amplifier with minor auxiliary parts. This is described in a paper which has been prepared and will be published by the bureau of standards about the first of May, and sold at 5 cents a copy. A few details of the amplifier, which utilizes 60-cycle current supply for both filaments and plates of the electron tubes, are as follows: This amplifier has three radio-frequency stages and two audio-frequency stages, and uses a crystal detector. The 50-cycle current when used in an ordinary amplifier circuit introduces a strong 60-cycle note which offers serious interference.

This has been practically eliminated by balancing resistances, grid condensers and special grid leaks of comparatively low resistance, telephone transformer in the output circuit, and crystal detector. Instead of electron tube detector, in the final form of the amplifier, there is only a slight residual hum which is not objectionable.

The amplification obtained with a c. supply was as good as that obtained with the same amplifier used with d. c. supply. The complete unit is light, compact and portable. For the reception of damped waves, the amplifier as constructed operated most satisfactorily for wave lengths from 200 to 750 meters. This range was determined by the working range of the radio-frequency transformers used. By using suitable radio-frequency transformers, it is expected that the amplifier will be effective for the reception of damped waves and undamped waves as long as 10,000 meters. For the reception of undamped waves, a separate heterodyne should be employed. The paper gives

BOSTON RADIO EXPOSITION

Stage All Set for New England's First Big Radio Show

Trans-Atlantic Station Will Receive Messages From France and Wales

BOSTON, April 24.—A four-day carnival of broadcast "listening-in," of radio lectures, demonstrations, unique "stunts" and prize contests will mark the Boston Radio exposition, to be held, beginning May 3, in Mechanics building, Boston. Not only will this be the first big general radio show New England has had, but, as indicated by the response from both exhibitors and public, will be the largest ever held in America.

Among features not before offered in radio shows will be a systematic educational display, a radio "hall of knowledge," broadcasting entirely within the exhibition hall, and a demonstration of radio piloting by the use of a land station, a ship station and a station inside the hall. There will also be in operation a transatlantic wireless receiving station which will receive code messages from France and Wales.

In the series of educational booths, through which visitors will pass in order, will be shown graphically radio theory and results in a way calculated to inform thousands of laymen on wireless matters more thoroughly than is possible by spoken or written description. An army of recent radio recruits in New England, as well as the "old timers," is looking forward to the interior broadcasting as only a small percentage of those who have "listened in" have ever observed the operation of a broadcast station.

On the program, lecturing either in person or by radio, will be a number of nationally and internationally known radio experts, public men, and broadcast entertainers who have previously lectured but not spoken by radio, enthusiasts. It is expected that Charles P. Steinmetz will have something to say, either on radio topics or descriptive of his "artificial lightning." Scarcely less interest is shown in the assured appearance of Earl C. Hanson, the youthful inventor whose adaptations of the vacuum tube have been of vast benefit both in the radio and in other scientific fields. It is expected he will tell about recent experiments and about his vacuumphone, the super-sensitive tube which has been shown to alleviate deafness.

Receiving of broadcasts, from practically all stations in the eastern part of the country and by a large number of the exhibitors, will be accomplished by the use of loop antennas inside the hall—a point insisted upon by the management in order to effectively show the public the great capabilities of wireless impulses in "going through" instead of over and around dense substances.

A novel demonstration by H. R. Cheatham of Somerville will prove to doubters that "wireless wire tapping" though not practicable under ordinary circumstances, is entirely possible.

Among the non-commercial exhibits will be a number of ancient (that is, for radio) sets and bits of apparatus, some of which, like the condenser jars used on the Carpathia at the time of the Titanic disaster, have historical significance.

The show will be opened the afternoon of May 3 by Mayor James M. Curley of Boston, who will greet the visitors by radio from a station nearby, and later appear in person. It is expected that his opening remarks will be heard by those listening radio fans who are not at the first day's session over a radius of 100 miles. The second night will "Governor's Night" with Governor Channing H. Cox as guest of honor.

TELEPHONE RECEIVER TOO WEAK FOR RADIO

BY R. L. DUNCAN
Director, Radio Institute of America
The head piece of a radio set is much more sensitive than the receiver of a land line telephone.

It has to be, for the wireless currents are often much weaker than the feeblest sounds on the phone.

The telephone, as used in wireless reception, converts the electrical energy sent through the air into sound energy, after the incoming oscillations have been rectified by a detector. The resistance of the phone should not be less than 2000 ohms. Three thousands ohm receivers are better, of course, but they are more expensive.

Construction
This resistance depends upon the number of turns of wire in the pole pieces. As seen by the accompanying

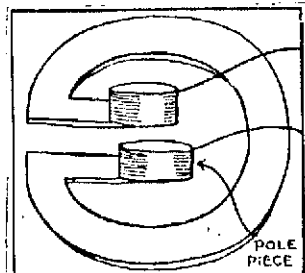

DIAGRAM OF RADIO HEAD PHONE INTERIOR

Sketch, there is a "C" shaped soft iron magnet upon which are placed two small forms insulated from it.

The magnet is of soft iron because it is so easily magnetized. Upward of 10,000 turns of extremely fine wire, fine as hair, are wound in coils on the small forms. In addition to the permanent iron magnet and the two coils is a very thin iron or mica diaphragm which fits on top of the coils and is held in place by the permanent magnetism of the soft iron magnet.

After the incoming signals have been rectified by the detector they pass into the windings of the phone and there create a magnetic field which increases the field of the permanent magnet. The magnetism thus created depends upon the quality and number of turns of wire in the coils.

While wireless telephones are usually rated in terms of their total resistance it is really the number of circuit diagrams, and station the values of the condensers, resistors and inductors used.

Elimination of Storage Battery, Most Expensive Part of Set, Now Possible

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Elimination of the storage battery, the most expensive part of the home made radio receiving set, is now possible, according to the bureau of standards of the department of commerce.

The receiving set developed by the bureau of standards, makes connection with the ordinary electric lamp socket. The set may be used with any type of antenna and special modes of connection, it is even possible to use the electric light wires themselves as the antenna.

The receiving set consists essentially of an amplifier with minor auxiliary parts. It is described in a paper which has been prepared and will be published by the bureau of standards about May 1.

Turns of wire rather than the resistance that determines the sensitivity of the set.

There is no direct electrical connection between the diaphragm and the rest of the telephone. But the additional magnetism created by the incoming signal increases the pull on the diaphragm and makes it vibrate.

These signals are intermittent. As the current stops or reverses its direction the pull on the diaphragm is lessened. As the action is repeated ever so rapidly, the vibrations of the diaphragm are strong enough to cause sounds by their attraction and release from the cotton rubber cap with a small hole in the center is screwed over the top of the diaphragm to hold it in place when the magnetism is lessened and makes the phone fit easily over the ear.

AUTOS CRASH ON CANAL BRIDGE

Two Ford automobiles, one a taxi and the other a runabout collided on the canal bridge in East Merrimack street this morning and as a result one woman was injured and one of the machines was damaged. The collision occurred at about 9:40 o'clock, while the machines were going in opposite directions.

The autos that figured in the accident were a taxicab owned by the Depot Taxi Cab Co., and operated by Ernest J. Bradley, and a runabout operated by A. L. Sturtevant of 22 Brookside street, this city. In the taxi were Joseph Curtin and Lillian Curtin, both claiming their home as Peterboro, N. H. The woman received slight injuries to her arm by being thrown against the side of the machine. The Sturtevant auto had one of its rear wheels smashed.

THE COMPENSATION ACT

Bill to Increase Certain Benefits Reported Favorably by Legislative Committee

(Special to The Sun)
BOSTON, April 24.—A bill of great interest to workmen, because it increases certain of the benefits under the workmen's compensation act, has been reported favorably by the legislative committee on judiciary, and seems certain of passage at the present session of the legislature.

They proposed legislation contemplates the payment of larger benefits to widows with minor children, in case the husband and father is killed in industry under circumstances which bring his death within the provisions of the compensation act.

Ever since the compensation law was passed, widows left with children under such circumstances have been allowed but $10 a week, and in many cases it has been absolutely impossible for the mother to rear her family on such wages as she might herself earn, plus the allowance of $10 a week. Now it is proposed that the allowance shall be proportionate to the number of children.

Several bills designed to accomplish this purpose were submitted to the legislature this year, and out of the mass the committee has drafted an entirely new bill which reads:

"If death results from the injury, the insurer shall pay the following dependent of the employee wholly dependent upon his earnings for support at the time of his injury compensation as follows: To the widow, so long as she remains unmarried, $16 a week in and so long as there are more than two children of the employee who are under the age of 18, or over said age and physically or mentally incapacitated from earning, $14 a week if and so long as there are two such children, $12 a week if and so long as there is one such child, and $10 a week if and so long as there is no such child; and, if the widow dies, to such children in equal shares, $16 a week if and so long as there are more than three such children, $14 a week if and so long as there are three such children, $12 a week if and so long as there are two such children, and $10 a week if and so long as there is one such child; but if the widow remarries, the afore-said payments to her shall terminate, and the insurer shall pay each week to each of such children, if and so long as there are more than five, his or her proportionate part of $16, and shall pay to each of such children, if and so long as there are five or less, $12 a week. The period covered by the payments provided for by the foregoing provisions of this section shall not be longer than 500 weeks. When weekly payments have been made to an injured employee before his death, compensation under the foregoing provisions of this section shall begin from the date of the last of such payments, and shall not continue more than 400 weeks from the date of the injury."

"In all other cases of total dependency, the insurer shall pay the dependent of the employee wholly dependent upon his earnings for support at the time of the injury a weekly payment equal to two-thirds of his average weekly wages, but not more than $10 nor less than $4 a week for a period of 500 weeks from the date of the injury; but in no case shall the amount be more than $4000. If the employee leaves dependents only partially dependent upon his earnings for support at the time of the injury, the insurer shall pay such dependents a weekly compensation equal to the same proportion of the weekly payments for the benefit of persons wholly dependent as the amount contributed by the employee to such partial dependents bears to the annual earnings of the deceased at the time of his injury. When weekly payments have been made to an injured employee before his death, the compensation under this paragraph to dependents shall begin from the date of the last of such payments, but shall not continue more than 500 weeks from the date of the injury."

2000 lbs. FISH

TO BE DISTRIBUTED

Absolutely Free

To needy persons bringing us an order from the City Poor Department, Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army or other authorized charitable organizations, we will distribute 2000 lbs. of absolutely fresh shore haddock.

We know that in every city in the Country today there are people who, through slack work, sickness or other unusual conditions, are finding it very difficult to get along.

Lowell is no exception to the rule, but Lowell, nevertheless, has been most cordial and generous to us. The Buying Public has saved a great many dollars since we opened, through our low prices and the cuts that have been made elsewhere to meet our prices.

Now we wish to extend a bit of consideration to those less fortunate than ourselves and our many customers.

We only require that those who apply should really need the help, and with this view, we ask that an order for the fish be obtained through the City Poor Department, Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army, or any authorized charitable organization. The fish will average about 3 lbs. apiece, and only one fish will be allowed to each family. If there are children in the family, say so when presenting your order and we will see that you get one of the larger fish.

Distribution will begin at 8.30 Tuesday morning, April 25th, and will continue during the day until the lot is completely gone.

People receiving this free fish are under no obligation to buy any other article.

A series of 12 two-reel pictures based on the Sherlock Holmes stories of Doyle have been bought by Educational Pictures and will be ready for distribution in several weeks.
These pictures were made in England with English players in the cast. Among the stories filmed are "The Hound of the Baskin's," "The Yellow Face" and "The Solitary Cyclist."
These things indicate the enterprise of the movies, the aptitude of producers and exhibitors in striking "while the iron is hot."

However, Conan Doyle is more in the public eye now for his detective stories. Probably no topic is so generally discussed today as spiritism, yet the movies have given but meager attention to stories dealing with the subject.

The outstanding exception is "Smiling Through," probably the best picture of Norma Talmadge's career, at least far and above anything she has done for the screen in the past two years.
This film deals with the subject of reincarnation. A philosophy thoroughly prepared and capably acted dealing with a spiritual theme should prove of tremendous interest at this time. Of the recent books, the one that appeals to this writer to offer exceptional opportunities for the movies is "The Bright Messenger" (Dutton).

The theme of this story by Algernon Blackwood is suggested by a query of a child, "Are we the only people—the only sort of things, I mean? Just men and women like us all over the world? No others of any sort bigger, for instance, or more wild and wonderful and beautiful?"

The story deals with the existence of a creature of fire and wind dwelling in the body of a simple peasant. Physician and psychologist are called in to explain the phenomenon, the former alive to the rhythms and beauties of life, anxious to make the non-human qualities permanent, the latter, unimaginative, seeking to preserve the peasant's personality.
Two women, one sensual and one spiritual, play their parts in determining the destiny of the man.
This plot spins up as one of intense interest, of great dramatic potentialities than any film story since "The Miracle Man."

Hugo Rosenfeld, managing director of the Rialto, Ritz and Criterion theatres in New York, was a musical director when the Rialto opened six years ago. Now he prepares entertainment for 5,000,000 people a week. He is a man of many talents. This would seem to be sufficient answer to those who believe music an unimportant feature in the exhibition of movies. Yet it might be taken as an argument for those who like Rex Beach, believe that talk of a distinctive artistic form for the movies is all bunk, that a photoplay is not a sufficient form of expression within itself.

Dustin Farnum was champion horn player of "Backport, Me." before he became an actor.
Richard T. Ross, popular leading man "before the war," returns to the screen in "The Love Nest."
Universal is filming Fanny Hurst's "Oats for the Woman."
Lloyd Hamilton claims to have a trained gorilla in his next comedy. That's a pretty good claim.
Charlotte Stevens, who won a Chicago beauty contest, is Bobby Vernon's leading lady in "A Hickory Dick."

MOTION PICTURE STAR

NASHUA, N. H., April 24.—Virginia Pearson, the motion picture star, who was to have spoken at the First Baptist church last night, was prevented at the last minute by the death of her father. She is expected to appear for the first time in its history, appeared to hear her father's funeral.

When Rev. A. J. Archibald, the pastor, told the congregation that Miss Pearson would not be permitted to speak, many fled out. The pastor explained that the deacons had instructed him to refuse to permit a woman to give the reason for their action the good of the church.

Miss Pearson, who is appearing at a local theatre, said: "I was invited to speak at the church by the pastor. Last night I was notified that I would not be allowed to address the congregation. There was no reason given. It is apparently the work of people who think that actors and actresses are damned forever."

The Movie Fashions Satire Out of Its Own Material

VIOIRA DANIEL. SHE'S THE HEROINE OF "COLD FEET," A FILM SATIRE ON THE CURWOOD STORIES.

NEW YORK, April 21.—The photoplay more and more is finding within itself new ideas for screen material, especially for comedies.

If the studio and the lot furnish such literary fun as that contained in "Merton of the Movies," Harry Leon Wilson's successful novel, they certainly are in a position to furnish satire expressed in their own medium.

The producers of the Christie comedies seem to have been the first to employ the movies as a theme with which to lampoon the movies.

The first was "A Barnyard Cavalier," a take-off on Fairbanks' "The Three Musketeers." The newest one, recently previewed by this writer, is "Cold Feet."

"Cold Feet" pokes fun at that hoary-haired theme of the movies, the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. It is even specific in its humor, the satire being aimed at the stories of James Oliver Curwood.

The heroine believes, through the Curwood stories, that a northwest mounted police story must have three ingredients, viz., a hero at least six feet tall and as handsome as Wally Reid, a treacherous half-breed Indian guide and a fair maiden fleeing on a dog sled, pursued by hungry wolves.

She sets out for her father's lumber camp to find such atmosphere. He sends word to his manager to disillusion her.

A half-breed guide meets her, drives her on a dog sled to a lonely shack. There the villain throws a fair maiden's baby to the wolves. The heroine calls for help. A sergeant of the R. N. W. M. P. comes to her assistance. He is stout and dumpy and wears big specs. As he is about to throw the villain, a bear enters. The sergeant makes a hasty exit. So do the others.

The heroine runs after the sergeant and brings him back. The bear has gone. The villain returns and knocks the sergeant out of the furniture, using the body of the villain as a bludgeon.

"Who are you?" demands the villain, when he comes to.
"Cameron of the Mounted," he answers.

M. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

The third-of-a-century observance of the foundation of Keith vauville will be formally observed at the local M. F. Keith theatre this week, beginning this afternoon. A record of achievement such as no other theatrical enterprise in this country has ever made before will be checked off. During this present week, wherever there is a theatre connected with the Keith interests, a special feature will be made of the founding of the third of a century of continuous work in the amusement line, along plans which were formulated by M. F. Keith, and which have been strictly adhered to ever since. For this present week's celebration an all-star bill has been assembled. It ought to provide the very best of pleasure.

Jay Dillon and Betty Parker in "Nic-Nacs of Now" will be at the top of the bill. They are a swapper team, for they look like just what they are—the real class. Much of this undoubtedly has come through their association with musical comedies which have scored big hits in the metropolis. Among these are "Going Up," "Odds and Ends" and "Broadway Brevities."

A real breath of musical comedy will be wafted over the footlights when these two performers start in. It will prove unmistakable.

Boys are very much of a study, when they are just the right age. Margaretta Padula, actress on this matter, for she will devote the greater part of her act to giving her impressions of boys. It is a neat bit of work and one which has gained for her a reputation which is enviable. She has the kind of personality which is best described as being "smiling."

A witty musical absurdity is "The Three of Us," with Charles Harrison and Sylvia Harkin, supported by Billy Hogue at the piano. Presenting it was written by Mr. Harrison. One of the big features of this act is the hand rehearsal which comes as a climax. It is a bit of fun.

Arthur Astill and his dairymaid will give a new touch of mimicry and ventriloquism. "A Day on an English Farm" is the title of his sidekick. Ward has something new. He has "dallies" and he causes no end of laughter by putting these dallies through dances.

Most of the mushroom dancers have quit their work. Only the fittest survived the ordeal, and among these fittest are the dancing Kennedy's who will electrify with their snappy work. Van Cello and Mary will do foot equilibria.

OPERA HOUSE

The second week of musical comedy at the Opera House, beginning with performances this afternoon and tonight, will introduce "The Shifters," a company par excellence in its particular line—one that has played big time in many theatres of the east and middle west, and enjoyed pronounced success everywhere. It is described as "a company of merry-makers, a jazz and spectacular satire of the pseudo secret society craze that has swept the country from coast to coast as rapidly as did the chestnut bell and the 15 puzzle some years ago. The chief funmaker of the company is none other than Al Lemon, well and favorably known among local theatre-folk, the popular French Canadian dialect comedian, whose remarkable ability has won him a favored place among the best entertainers in musical comedy at the present time. He is elderly, but he is considered one of the best dancers on the American stage today, and has a standing offer to most of the comedians in his respective line. His challenge has stood for about two seasons and he still holds it despite several efforts to wrest the title from him.

Assisting this popular comedian is a bevy of pretty and clever girls—all young and fascinating—who know how to sing, dance and amuse with the best of the Broadway stars. Marie Camilla, a prima donna of note, possessing a wonderfully good singing voice and charming personality, heads the list of talents, and among the others in the cast are Billie Kay, a dashing soufflé; Bob Jowett, "the Chestnutfield musical comedian"; Jack Ward, a hokey Yankee comedian; Bob Ellsworth and others. The swaggers chorons of singing and dancing girls is of various types of beauty. The show has a special load of scenery and electrical effects.

Remember the show opened this (Monday) afternoon. There will be no performance Tuesday night because of the presence of the show at a society concert, but the usual Tuesday matinee will be held. Tickets now selling. Get your reservations early and avoid disappointment. The show first and don't miss anything. The show opens daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. Tel. 261.

CROWN THEATRE

Most women realize that a husband's love, faith and pride in them are their most precious possessions. They will run every risk rather than lose that confidence. But Mona Lisa plays the part of a wife who risks that faith in Lois Weber's photoplay, "Too Wise Wives" which will be seen at the Crown theatre to-morrow.

The wife has married for money. She desires her old sweetheart, however. The latter has happily married. His wife showers him with every attention. While not lacking in appreciation, he is bored with the surfeit of her kindness.

Just how narrowly he risks being forced into a compromising situation is dramatically revealed in "Too Wise Wives" which is a play for women by

THE STRAND

A brand of motion picture entertainment second to none in the east will be presented at the Strand for the first three days of this week, beginning with matinee today, when Alice Lake in "The Hole in the Wall," and with Rogers in his newest comedy drama, "A Poor Relation," adapted from the popular play of the same name, with head the list of features. Besides these, there is to be a regular comedy and the International Weekly, as well as delightful musical numbers by Signor Desaire. Picture patrons will find in this offering one of the best and most varied programs of the season.

RIALTO THEATRE

Miriam Cooper in "The Oath" forms the feature attraction of the Rialto for the first three days of this week, beginning this afternoon. It is a picture all of you should see and is one which will live long in your memories. On the same program for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday is a strong story entitled "The Cave Girl," also a strong comedy and a set of KINOGRAMS.

HENNA BATH CULT

BEING FORMED

LONDON, April 24.—A henna bath cult is forming among London's more ultra society women who deem olive colored skin something worth acquiring.

The craze is said to be of French or Arabian origin. Baths, strongly flavored with henna dye, are taken monthly and impart a delicate tint which looks well with evening dresses of oriental shades and designs now popular here.

Immersion is declared to be easier than treating only that considerable portion of the body exposed by modern evening gowns.

ANALYZING SEN. LODGE'S HAND WRITING

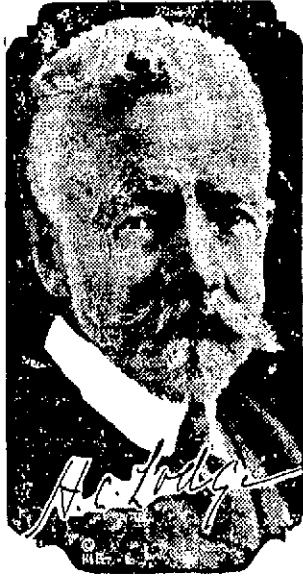

BY ALBERT J. SMITH
The signature of Senator Cabot Lodge is not a true reflection of this man. It is a veil that shuts out the hidden faculties he possesses.

Examination of specimens of the senator's handwriting indicate he does not sign his name wholly as he writes. He loses much of his individuality in his signature that is strongly indicated in his script. However, there are vestiges of his personality in his autograph.

Lodge's pen marks denote the amplitude of the judicial mind, the astute investigator, the drilled jurist. They also mark the adroit politician. The strength of his capabilities lies in his powerful and deep discernment of men and things that most men of equal intelligence would fail to discover.

He is a veritable psychic in his intuitive discernment of unseen forces. He "feels" them; he senses the approach of trouble and discord. He deduces by instinct.

Disconnected Letters
The graphologist gains this information from the unusual disconnections

HENRY CABOT LODGE AND HIS SIGNATURE

In the letters. These separations are due to the mental alertness of the individual, that move faster than the physical senses are able.

None of the genius type all write the disconnected form. It denotes ripe, rapid and rhapsodic intelligence.

In Lodge's case, there is a slight modification of this rule, because of his practical training in life, but the essence of his force is manifested in most every advance made by him.

One of his modifying qualities is his great tenacity of purpose; the love of contest and the quick grasp of a problem. He has a quick and ready mind; he is nimble-witted; judgment of matters and people is dictated by an inner consciousness rather than by any process of reasoning. He is quick of comprehension, observant, critical; little escapes his notice.

Lodge is more inspirational than he is willing to admit. He is almost an idealist, for his acts and his words are largely inspirational. His oratorical powers are well developed and he is an interesting talker, with a smack of the dry humor possessed by men of dignified bearing.

BISHOP SCORES GIRLS' DRESS

MANCHESTER, N. H., April 24.—Rev. George Albert Guertin, bishop of the New Hampshire Catholic diocese, yesterday hotly scored women's fashions. "Modern styles in women's clothing are directly responsible for much of the turmoil in the world today," he said. The modern girl, according to the bishop, does not command the respect which should be accorded a mother.

"Can a man look at a girl dressed as so many Manchester girls are dressed with anything but disgust? Their short skirts and the low necks lead only to disrespect." The bishop denounced the "actress type" as he termed it.

The bishop pleaded for a more conservative style of feminine dress among the girls of his parish. "The woman who can win the respect of men by her modesty," he said, "can hold the respect of her children. Then women can point the way to a permanent world peace."

Sharpshooting High School Girls Give Boys Strong Competition

COUNCIL BLUFFS HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS AT SHARPSHOOTING PRACTICE

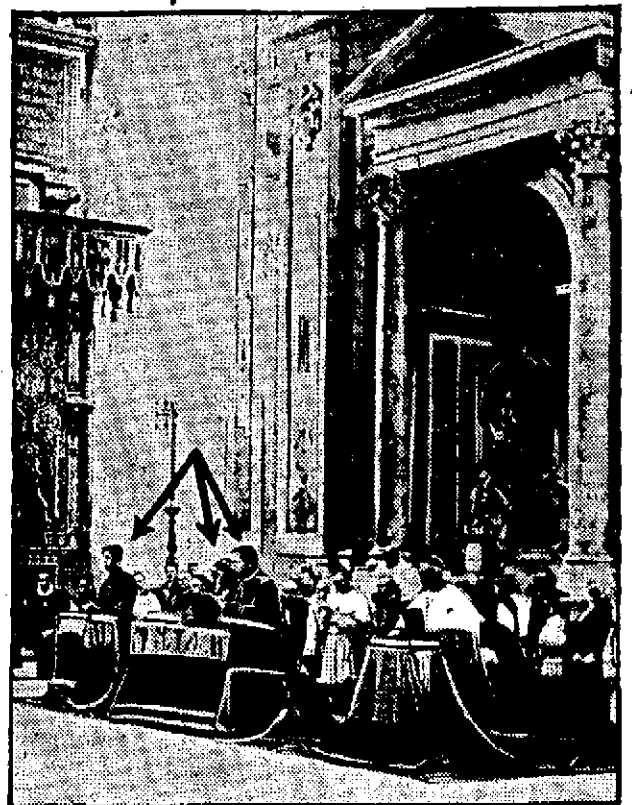

By N.E.A. Service
COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa, April 24—Say, girls! Have you an unused attic in your high school? Then you may learn to qualify as sharpshooters just as 60 high school girls in Council Bluffs, Ia., are doing.
The Council Bluffs attic high school range cost but $31.25. Of course it was built for the boys, but by a lucky chance, the girls, who had gun fever, also got range privileges.
The instructors, regular army officers, say they will match the girls against the boy rifle teams any time, and bet on the former!
Here's how the girls got equal surface.
Margaret Howland, a daring senior, made a bet that she could meet and converse with Colonel F. J. Morrow of Washington, when he visited Council Bluffs on an inspection trip.
Pretending that she represented the girls of the school who wished to cooperate with the boys' activities, she succeeded.
Then she had to make good, and in behalf of the girls asked for the rifle range. She got it.

ILLINOIS FLOOD BREAKS THROUGH 30-FOOT LEVEE

Several lives were lost and thousands of dollars in property destroyed by floods in the coal mining region of Illinois. This shows water breaking through the 30-foot wall of the levee at Beardstown, Ill., one of the biggest levees in the Mississippi valley, protecting thousands of acres of land. Five minutes after the photo was snapped the spot where the photographer stood was swept away.

Booze Brought Into Country on Former Naval Craft Commanded By Officers Wearing Uniforms of U. S. Navy

FORMER CHASER AND CREW SEIZED

Tell Story of Being Held Up By Pirates, 20 Miles Off Montauk Point

Boarded Craft With Drawn Revolvers, Bound Commander and Seized Liquor

NEW YORK, April 24.—A bootlegging scheme whereby liquor was smuggled into this country from Bermuda and Cuba on former submarine chasers, commanded by officers wearing the uniform of the United States navy has been unearthed. It was announced today at the customs house.

The former chaser 101, renamed Flidus, has been seized with her commander and crew of seven, the announcement stated.

Customs officials claimed to have received from the crew a story to the effect that pirates held up the chaser yesterday afternoon, 20 miles off Montauk Point, Long Island, boarded the craft with drawn revolvers, bound the commander to the mast, and seized the chaser's cargo of liquor.

LOAN ORDER FOR $20,000

Order for Purchase of First Street Oval Now Up to the Municipal Council

The city council tomorrow night will either accept or reject the loan order for $20,000 for the purchase of the first street oval property. The chances are all in favor of acceptance and the necessary steps for the borrowing of the money will immediately follow. As the acceptance of the city's offer by the Locks and Canals was with the provision that payment should be made within 60 days, it will be necessary to borrow all the money at once.

Just as soon as the loan order is adopted, Supt. John W. Kernan, the park department will begin whatever development of the oval is possible this year. Also, he will confer with high school officials in an effort to launch a systematic campaign to secure funds for the erection of a stadium on the oval to be used for high school athletic purposes.

In connection with this, it may be interesting to recall what occurred in Haverhill when that city donated a plot of eight acres on which a splendid athletic plant was built in 1916. The stadium there is well known by hundreds of Lowell people and its justification was established two years after it was erected.

A concrete fence encloses an area of 8½ acres and the cost of the plant, including the fence, uncovered grandstand and a well graded field was $21,000. That was in 1916 and of course the cost today of a similar plant would be greater.

Of the $21,000 expended, $12,000 was raised by public subscription; $2000 was cleared by the Haverhill high school athletic association during the first two years over by the city on a bond issue. It is understood, however, that money now has been turned back into the city treasury and the bonds have been paid off.

The grandstand, which runs the entire length of the football field seats 5250 persons, while there are movable bleachers capable of accommodating 800.

Inside in the enclosure there is a football field, a baseball field, quarter-mile running track with 100 yard straightaway and three tennis courts. Under the grandstand there are two locked rooms, two toilets and eight shower baths.

Haverhill stadium is built on a tract of land only eight acres, while there are 12 acres in the first street oval property under consideration.

In a letter from Mayor Charles H. Croy of Haverhill, written to Supt. Kernan in 1920, he said:

"There is no doubt that the stadium built in 1916 has benefited the public and is very much appreciated and we know it has advertised the city."

GENERAL STRIKE IN IRELAND

Irish Free State Cut Off From Outside World and Even From Ulster

24-Hour General Strike of Labor Against Militarism Causes Tie-up

LONDON, April 24 (by the Associated Press).—The Irish Free State was cut off from the outside world and even from Ulster today as a result of the great 24-hour general strike of labor against militarism in Ireland.

Telegraphic and telephonic communication had ceased, and all means of transportation apparently were halted. One wireless set was working between military headquarters in Ulster and the Dublin headquarters, and since this was reported to be carrying only routine messages, it was assumed in Ulster that nothing untoward was happening in the south.

Between London and Dublin there were no means of communication whatever.

ALE ON TAP AS IN OLD DAYS

Dry Officer Declares Brockton Eagles Maintained a Barroom and Brewmaster

Charges Ale Being Sold at 10 Cents a Glass When Agents Made Raid

BOSTON, April 24.—Asserting that the Brockton Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, maintained a barroom and a brewmaster and was selling ale at 10 cents a glass, when his agents raided its building last Friday, Prohibition Supervisor James P. Roberts today obtained warrants for the arrest of four men connected with the organization. Joseph D. O'Brien, financial secretary, Michael Hennessey, chairman of the board of trustees, William O'Brien, described as the brewmaster, and Jacob Gofines, handyman at the club rooms, are the men who will be arrested, Roberts announced.

The prohibition supervisor, who conducted the raid himself, said they found O'Brien in the basement where the liquor was manufactured. In the cellar were 19 half barrels of ale, he said, together with malt, hops, yeast and other ingredients, and mixing tubs. "We found copper pipes running to the barroom on the second floor, where ale was on tap as in the old days, forced up by compressed air," Supervisor Roberts added.

"In the barroom we found 50 members, one of whom was so drunk that he could not be awakened. Ale was being sold at 10 cents a glass. The glasses were small. In addition, we found bottles behind the bar containing drops of moonshine. Other bottles of the same kind were found in the cellar."

WOULD CUT ELECTRIC POWER ONE-THIRD

WORCESTER, April 24.—United States Senator Irene L. Lenroot of Wisconsin told the chamber of commerce at a luncheon here today that the creation of the great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway would give this city electric power at "a little over one-third of what you are now paying for power produced from coal."

Of the 1,450,000 hydro-electric horse power which would be developed, he said, one-half would go to the United States and New England would get 600,000 of it, he assumed.

Senator Lenroot in an interview declared that it would be a national calamity if Massachusetts should fail to return Lenroot to the senate because of his intimate knowledge of matters pertaining to foreign relations.

THE STREET DEPARTMENT

Sun to Publish Resume of Street Work From Time to Time

First Penetration Asphalt Job of Year in East Merrimack Street

Believing that at this season of the year the general public has more interest in the repair and construction of streets than in any other municipal activity and feeling that this interest has been intensified this year because of the fact that the street department has just begun to operate under its reorganized system, brought about by the change in charter. The Sun, from time to time will publish a resume of street work condensed in bulletin form, but nevertheless attempting to cover all street operations in progress from day to day.

The first of this series is given herewith.

MONDAY, APRIL 24

City Will Sustain Big Loss in Credits From State Corporation and Income Taxes

Lowell's Share of Income Tax to Be Reduced 25 Per Cent—Proportion of Corporation Tax Will Drop 50 Per Cent—Mayor Says Decreases in Tax Items Considered When Budget Was Prepared

Because of general business depression and an appreciable decrease in the number of taxable individual incomes, Lowell will suffer a quarter of a million dollar loss this year in its credits from state corporation and income taxes.

According to an estimate received today from State Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long, Lowell's share of the income tax will be reduced by 25 per cent, while its proportion of the corporation tax will fall off a good 50 per cent. In round figures, this will mean $2 on the local tax rate, yet Mayor Brown reasserts that last year's rate of $31.40 will not be exceeded. He explains by saying that he allowed for decreases in both tax items when he prepared his budget, although

FRENCH MAY LEAVE GENOA

Will Quit if Unable to Continue With Work Under Conditions Agreed Upon

Premier Poincare Outlines France's Position in Speech at Bar-Le-Duc

France to Act Alone, if Necessary, to Maintain Integrity of Versailles Treaty

BAR-LE-DUC, April 24 (by the Associated Press).—Premier Poincare announced in a speech here today, that if the French delegation at Genoa could not go ahead with its work under the agreed conditions, France would regretfully have to cease participation in the conference.

French Demand Guarantees
GENOA, April 24 (by the Associated Press).—The French delegation announced today that it was willing to subscribe to the proposed pact under which the various nations would agree to abstain from aggression, provided it was backed by proper guarantees, considered especially necessary in view of the Russo-German treaty.

In its announcement of qualified willingness to become a party to this pact, proposed by Prince Maurice de Broglie, George of Great Britain, the French delegation said:

"It must be made clear that Germany and Russia have no aggressive intentions before the rest of Europe can agree to any such pact."

"If it involved the neutralization of frontier zones it may be useful. If it involves later some form of reduction of armaments it may be beneficial."

"France is ready to reduce its armaments, but it must not be asked to do so, because this would become expenditures, but it must not be asked to do so."

LOWELL COUPLE APPEAL

Sentenced at Lynn for Being Present Where Drugs Were Found

LYNN, April 24.—Samuel Posner of Lowell today appealed a nine months' sentence and a fine of $100 for being present where drugs were found. Marguerite Sullivan of the same city appealed a six months' sentence on the same charge. Their bail was fixed at $2500 and $3000, respectively.

Posner and Miss Sullivan were arrested last Friday night when the police raided a hotel here, seizing some drugs.

TO HONOR MEMORY OF GRANT
BOSTON, April 24.—Major General Clarence R. Edwards, commander of the First Army Corps area, today ordered that next Thursday, the centennial anniversary of the birth of U. S. Grant, be made a holiday at all posts in this district. The former president's salute of 21 guns was ordered fired at all stations at 10 o'clock Thursday morning preceded by a dress parade and the playing of patriotic airs.

McMAHON TO ANSWER GREENE

Will Attempt to Show 20 Per Cent Wage Cut Unjustified

Also That Part of 22½ P. C. Cut of Dec. 1920, Should Be Returned

LAWRENCE, April 24.—President Thomas F. McMahon of the United Textile Workers of America announced this noon that he will speak at a mass meeting on the common at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon and will at that time answer the speech made by Treasurer Edwin Farnham Greene of the Pacific Mills at the Rotary club meeting last Thursday. In case of rain the meeting will be held in the city hall.

Mr. McMahon stated that he will attempt to show at that time, not only why the recent 20 per cent wage cut was unjustified, but also why part, if not all of the 22½ per cent cut of December, 1920, should be returned to the workers.

Commenting on the apparent lack of interest in the schoolhouse meetings of the strikers during the last three days, Mr. McMahon said the workers were firm in their demand for no compromise proposition.

He said that more than one-half of the relief cases cared for last week, were of strikers who are not members of the U.T.W. The local U.T.W. membership has now reached 2000, Mr. McMahon said.

DECISIONS BY U. S. SUPREME COURT

Manufacturers Must Use Trade Names and Labels With Description of Goods

Alien Property Custodian Cannot Be Forced to Surrender Bergdoll Property

Erwin Bergdoll's Application for Writ of Habeas Corpus Denied

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Manufacturers are required to use trade names and labels which will convey to the purchasing public an accurate description of the materials or ingredients composing their products, the supreme court today decided in a case brought by the federal trade commission against the Whittier Hosiery Co. Justice Brandeis in delivering the opinion of the court upheld the authority of the trade commission to issue an order to the company to desist from certain practices, typical of the trade, particularly its label "Merino" as used in connection with knit goods, on the grounds that they constituted unfair competition. Justice McReynolds dissented.

Decision on Bergdoll Case
WASHINGTON, April 24.—Justice Bradley in the supreme court of the District of Columbia, today ruled that the alien property custodian cannot be required to surrender property of Erwin C. Bergdoll, valued at $750,000 if the government proves that Bergdoll has been convicted of desertion and is now a fugitive from justice.

Application for Writ Denied
WASHINGTON, April 24.—The supreme court today denied the application of Erwin C. Bergdoll of Philadelphia for a writ of habeas corpus. Erwin, a brother of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, is now serving a sentence of four years in Leavenworth for failure to perform military service during the war and contended he was illegally convicted.

DRY GOODS STORE ROBBED
WINTHROP, April 24.—Burglars who broke into the drygoods store of Clara J. Poline early today, packed merchandise valued at $1000 into their automobile and escaped.

FIRM SUSPENDED
NEW YORK, April 24.—Suspension of the stock brokerage firm of Field Brothers was announced by the Consolidated Stock Exchange today.

PHILANTHROPEAN STRAITS
BOSTON, April 24.—Ferdinand Strauss, president of Leopold Meyer Co., a clothing firm, died today. He had been active in philanthropic work and was a trustee of the Boston Foundation.

Greek Army Begins Advance Southward—Turks Rush up Troops

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 24.—(By the Associated Press)—The capture of Sokio and Scalanova, about 40 miles south of Smyrna, Asia Minor, by Greek troops, was confirmed in a Turkish nationalist communique received here today. The Greek army has begun its advance southward. The Turks are rushing up troops in great numbers and heavy fighting is reported in the Italian zone.

LOWELL WOMAN IN LAWRENCE HOSPITAL

Mrs. Mary Kosciolok, of 888 Lakeview avenue, this city, is confined to the Lawrence General Hospital suffering from a compound fracture of the left leg as a result of being struck by an automobile truck on the Lowell-Lawrence boulevard last evening. Her condition is not serious.

Mrs. Kosciolok was standing in the road waiting for an electric car in the early evening when an automobile truck operated by Charles D. Burns of 85 Arlington street, Lawrence, came along and struck her a glancing blow, throwing her forcibly to the ground. The machine then climbed over an embankment and turned turtle, but fortunately the driver escaped injury.

Shortly after the accident Harry J. Roche of Long Pond road, Dracut, and Ralph Connor of 215 Hale street, this city, while on their way to Lawrence, saw the woman lying in the road. They picked her up and removed her to the corner of Essex street and Broadway in the downtown city, whence she was taken to the Lawrence General Hospital. Burns stated later that the accident occurred when he became blinded by the headlights of an oncoming electric car. He said he did not see the woman until it was too late and it was his attempt to avert the collision that caused his machine to swerve and climb over the embankment. The auto was badly damaged.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Trial of Mrs. Lillian Raizen, charged with the murder of Dr. Abraham Olickstein in his Brooklyn office, has been indefinitely postponed, pending the report of a commission which has been examining her sanity. District Attorney Ruston announced today.

It was learned in this city last night that Mrs. Kosciolok left her home early in the afternoon to look over a vacant tenement on Christian hill and it is believed that after her inclusion had been accomplished, she cut across the fields to the nearest car line. Her husband was informed of the accident by Sgt. Kennedy last evening and he left immediately for the downtown city.

PATROLMEN TO BE COMMENDED

At all roll calls of the police department either tomorrow or Wednesday, Officers Paul Spillane and William Linton will receive official commendation by the acting superintendent, because of their arrest, early Friday morning, of William J. Sternberg, the burglar who raided offices in the Downtown building and other downtown blocks.

A letter has been received by Supt. MacFarlane from Richard C. Smith, whose office in the Museum block was entered, extending their thanks and congratulations to the department for the very prompt and efficient service rendered on the occasion of the robbery. The commendation states that Officer Spillane is deserving of special mention for his alertness and general conduct. A check for the Police Relief association to the amount of $10 was enclosed.

REAL ESTATE TRANSFER
The property at the corner of Andover street and Fayette street, owned by Harry Wheeler, has been sold to Benjamin Alfred of Lawrence. The property consists of a building containing six stores and six tenements and about 8000 square feet of land and is assessed for $14,000.

MISSING GIRLS FOUND HAT STILL CHIEF

Two Students Who Fled Northfield Seminary Located in Fitchburg

FITCHBURG, April 24.—A one week's search by frantic families and a greatly perturbed faculty at sedate Northfield seminary in Northfield ended here yesterday morning when Miss Emma Safford, aged 22, of Pawtucket, R. I., and Miss Bernice Hollinshead of South Bond, Ind., were taken into custody by Fitchburg police as they chatted with white-coated attendants in a Main street lunch room. The wild adventure of the two girl students who it was believed had been abducted, ended ingloriously when they were taken home by thankful but angry representatives of their families. The girls were unrepentant and declared they didn't care what happened so long as they were not obliged to return to school.

John Halkala, aged 20, and Clarence Barle, aged 18 of Gardner, the two young "abductors," seemed surprised when informed of the fate of their two girl friends and they willingly returned to Chief of Police Shea a diamond ring belonging to Miss Hollinshead which the girl had given them they said as security for a loan of $25.

Bored to desperation by the discipline at the seminary, founded by the late Dwight L. Moody and where bobbed hair, silk stockings and other feminine conceits are not only frowned upon but forbidden, the two young girls fled the dormitory in company with two strange young men without an extra hairpin and with a total bank roll of 72 cents.

At three o'clock yesterday morning, Patrolman William H. Grant came upon the two girls in the Fitchburg lunch room and on orders of Sergeant William E. Hackett he ordered them taken to the station. At the station the girls freely confessed their identity. Families were notified and M. A. Hollinshead, a brother, who had been anxiously awaiting some word of his courageous daughter, telephoned here by automobile and took his sister home on the next train out. Ernest Sellow, prominent business man of Pawtucket, R. I., foster father of the Safford girl, called for her late in the afternoon and took her home by automobile. There will be family councils in both homes. It was stated authoritatively.

Not to Return to School
NORTHFIELD, April 24.—Principal Charles E. Dickinson of Northfield seminary said today that Miss Emma Safford of Pawtucket, R. I., and Miss Bernice Hollinshead of Fort Clinton, Ohio, who disappeared from the seminary a week ago Sunday and were found in a Fitchburg restaurant yesterday morning, would not return to the seminary. Miss Safford will go to Pawtucket and later will join her brother in Bemidji, Minn., and Miss Hollinshead will go to her home in Ohio.

CAME TO LOWELL FIFTY YEARS AGO

Just fifty years ago today, Mr. Patrick O'Hearn, the well known contractor, came to Lowell, and his career in Lowell has been marked by unusual success, brought about solely by his tireless energy, his manifest willingness to work early and late and his thorough knowledge of his business.

Some of Lowell's most imposing buildings were built by Mr. O'Hearn or under his direction, one of the finest being the Lowell Textile school, which is recognized as the best of its kind in the country. Other buildings erected by him are the Associated Building, the high school, Southwick block, Appleton Bank building, Paulineer estate, buildings of the Harvard Brewing Co., Talbot Memorial building at North Billerica, several of the mills of the Appleton Co., several Lowell school buildings and many other structures in Lowell and elsewhere. He has had a most interesting career in Lowell, a chat with him finds him an engaging person indeed, interesting in many ways and a high-minded citizen. For years he was identified with the old Lowell board of trade and was an energetic member of its board of directors and while he has been urged to become a candidate for public office, he has declined, believing that one can be of valuable service as a private citizen.

BITTEN BY DOG
The board of health has been notified that Madeline Powers, aged 10 years, of 1 Anne place, was bitten last Friday by a dog owned by a Mr. Howe, of 100 Branch street. The case has been turned over to Dr. W. A. Sherman for investigation.

HAT STILL CHIEF MURDER CLEW

Officers at Work on Brewster Case Again Turn Attention to New Hampshire

Other Officers Seek Swarthby Man Reported Seen Near Ticket Office

WINCHESTER, April 24.—Investigation into the murder of Ralph W. Brewster, the station agent who was shot and killed in his office here last Thursday evening, reverted to New Hampshire today with a salt and pepper cloth hat picked up near the station as the chief clue. The police, after eliminating from the case a young man whom they questioned at Chicheston, N. H., last Saturday, were off on another track today with the hat as their guide.

Meanwhile, preparations were being made for Brewster's funeral at Pittsfield, N. H., his former home, this afternoon. Statements of several persons who said they saw a "swarthby" man in the neighborhood of the station at about the time of the murder, gave the local and state officers opportunity for investigation throughout this district. All persons who knew Brewster during his brief period of residence here, are now believed to have told the police all they know concerning him.

For Disbarment of Pelletier

In the removal proceedings, Pelletier said: "Further words from me would be fruitless and only put me in the position of playing a part in a mock trial." The proceedings lasted less than 15 minutes. Justice Carroll presided.

Mr. Pelletier in the statement which he read said that nothing he could say would affect the court's decision given in the previous case. The court, he declared, was foreclosed and he was forejudged.

That the testimony in my other case did not justify the findings was the contention of my distinguished attorney, Hon. James A. Reed, and I must earnestly so maintain today," Mr. Pelletier said.

"The evidence given by you to the crooks, libertines and convicts so well described by my attorney as the 'rogues' gallery, I insist, was unwarranted. Their testimony is now in evidence in this case and, of course, your Honor must give the same credence to them as in the other case."

"In that case there was proof only of the exercise of official discretion, similarly used in a thousand cases, universally exercised by every district attorney, an endeavor to do what seems best under all circumstances as he sees them, sometimes upon information that is secret, sacred and never to be divulged; an effort to salvage wrongdoers from the wreck of prison sentence and especially first offenders; a desire to protect reputations and innocent families and to abort attempted blackmail by sympathy—in a word, a desire to promote and protect the public good and whenever possible to keep the community clean and free from scandal and distress."

"From your exalted position Your Honor may follow the procedure of the full bench and characterize such official discretion in the extraordinary language of censure and condemnation used by me. I am, of course, powerless to control your statement already made but I cannot escape the feeling that certain charges not filed but openly referred to in court may be the cause of such extravagant action."

In the removal proceedings Pelletier was charged in several instances with complicity to extort large sums of money from various persons, and with having failed to prosecute in certain instances from improper motives.

Daniel H. Conkey, an attorney ordered disbarred last week by the supreme court, was named as a conspirator in several of the allegations.

Judge Carroll took the petition for disbarment of Pelletier under advisement.

CHURCH HONORS ORGANIST KERSHAW

At the First Baptist church last evening, due recognition was made of the completion of 25 years of service as an organist by Wilfred Kershaw, who for the past 11 years has sat at the keyboard of the instrument there and who, previously had played in other local churches to round out his quarter-century as a church musician.

Not only did Mr. Kershaw, himself, mark the event by an excellent organ program, but the entire service was given over to appreciation of his work, and the pastor, Rev. Edward Babcock, spoke glowingly of his service to the church. The choral union of the church presented the organist a beautiful basket of red roses that were placed on the console as he played.

TO INSPECT WATER PLANT

F. A. Barber of Boston, the consulting engineer retained by the city when the filtration plant was built on the boulevard, is expected in Lowell tomorrow, with a Mr. Jergen, a construction engineer from Sweden, to make an inspection of the local water plant. They will be accompanied by City Engineer Stephen Kearney and the visit simply is for the purpose of acquainting the visiting engineer with the scope and type of the Lowell system.

TO OUR PATRONS AND CITIZENS OF LOWELL—

On account of complaint that a few people were standing in the rear of our theatre, which is contrary to law, even though there were some unfilled seats, a suspension of our license to operate the MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE has been ordered by the State authorities for MONDAY, APRIL 24, TUESDAY, APRIL 25, during which two days the theatre will be closed, but will reopen WEDNESDAY afternoon as usual.

In our desire to be courteous to our patrons, we have never attempted to hurry people out when leaving the theatre, but hereafter we must ask our patrons, after leaving their seats, to promptly leave the theatre and not stop or linger at the rear; such co-operation will be sincerely appreciated by this management, and will prevent us from any possible embarrassment in the enforcement of the law, which we are obliged to enforce.

We give this public explanation as we feel that our patrons are entitled to understand the exact circumstances.

Very truly yours,

CARD. O'CONNELL WARMLY GREETED UPON HIS RETURN FROM ROME

Boston Prelate Welcomed at New York by Large Committee, Including Several From Lowell—Says All Europe Looking to America "to Settle Things"—Pays High Tribute to New Pope

NEW YORK, April 24.—William Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston, arrived home from Rome yesterday morning, leaving the steamship Arabic of the White Star line at pier 59, North river, about 10 o'clock. The landing was somewhat later than had been expected, owing to the strong tide, which gave half a dozen tugs a hard time warring the big Mediterranean liner into her berth.

A reception committee of some 25 church and laymen was at the pier to welcome the cardinal and, during the hour that the ship was being moved back and forth in the effort to get her tied up, the cardinal waved his acknowledgments of salutes as he stood on the saloon deck.

With him were Msgr. M. J. Splaine, P.R. of St. Joseph's church, Roxbury, and Msgr. Richard J. Huberlin, the cardinal's secretary. Dr. John R. Slattery, superintendent of St. Elizabeth's hospital, who accompanied the cardinal on the trip, also was with the returning party.

Cardinal O'Connell declared that everyone in Europe wanted America to enter the arena of world affairs and "to settle things."

"Will she? Can she? Ought she?" he asked. "I still cannot answer. Truly, however, what she can do, she must find a way to do. For Europe is clearly at the end of her resources. Either Europe will join all her forces and put aside hatred and distrust, or Europe for a generation will sit amid ruins."

"The bravery of Italians in the face of present conditions," he added, "is nothing short of heroic. Everybody was looking forward to the Genoa conference with hope, but occasionally I heard the skeptic comment, 'Wait and see.'"

"Everybody knows that while these mutual suspicions and hatreds and distrusts are kept up, nothing will come but worse conditions—more poverty and more disorder, with possible anarchy."

"But who is going to change this attitude of unfriendliness and distrust? It is a moral problem. Who can solve it? The church. But who is listening to the church among the ruling classes? They are listening, on the contrary, to the stump speeches which every sane man knows to be rubbish."

Voyage of Two Weeks
The cardinal was well pleased to be back. He was on board ship more than a fortnight, having started from Naples, after which the Arabic went to Alexandria and then headed for this country. The voyage home was very unfavorable, storms and high winds occurring practically every day. Added to this were high seas.

On the way over the Holy Week period was passed, and the nuptial of W. O'Hagan had a temporary altar into her berth.

WILLIAM CARDINAL O'CONNELL

erected in the saloon, and every day during Holy Week the cardinal officiated at mass, as he did on Easter morning.

The steamship carried a heavy cargo and was two days late in making port.

The cardinal was greeted at quarantine by a number of Boston newspapermen, to whom he gave out an interview. He then chatted about various subjects, and being asked what his immediate plans were, said that he proposed going to the Gotham hotel, where he would spend the balance of the day and evening, and start for Boston Monday morning, arriving late in the afternoon.

The arrangements for the formal reception by the League of Catholic

Women will be decided upon some time early in the week and will probably be next Sunday in the Boston Opera House.

After the long delay in warping the Arabic into her berth the cardinal came ashore and greeted individually the monsignori, priests and laymen who were awaiting him. He had a few pleasant words with each one and gave confirmation to the recent reports concerning the elevation of several Boston priests to become monsignori, by greeting Rev. Fr. Arthur T. Connolly of Jamaica Plain as "Monsignor."

This was the first official word the new monsignori had of their advancement. Three of them were at the pier, Msgr. Huberlin, his secretary, who went abroad with the cardinal, and Msgr. Joseph F. McGlinchey and Msgr. Arthur T. Connolly of Jamaica Plain, who were in the revolving line.

The other Boston priest to be honored on the occasion of the cardinal's visit to Rome was Msgr. Richard Neagle, P.R. of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Malden.

Despite the two weeks on shipboard the cardinal looked very well. He was slightly tanned by the sea air, as were his traveling companions. When he had greeted the Boston visitors the cardinal addressed them briefly. He said that it was, indeed, a great pleasure to him to find so many of his priests and people awaiting his arrival.

He said that such a remembrance impressed him very much, even more than he could tell, and he wanted all to know that their interest was very highly appreciated.

"There is little that I can say to you that you do not already know," the cardinal continued. "I, we, of course, are all glad to be back home again. We had a pleasant voyage going over, but the weather was bad on the return trip."

The New Pope

In his interview with the newspaper men at quarantine, the cardinal in speaking of the new pope said:

"The new pope was acclaimed in Rome with great applause. In fact his election seems to be a particularly happy choice. Though not much known personally, his general character of high intelligence and conciliatory disposition seem just the qualities needed at the present moment in Europe, and all Europe welcomed him to his great task."

"I saw him several times and talked with him at great length. The traits which struck me as the dominant notes of his makeup are vigor of mind and body. His outdoor life has produced excellent results. He is very calm and deliberate and seems very gentle and yet firm. I felt more and more that he had the same amiable nature of heart as dear Pius X."

"He seems one who can suffer much silently and not become embittered. That is a wonderful trait in a pope. It is unpretentious, he is eager to be informed and eager to learn. He is a man—not a bureaucrat. He will not be functional nor lax. He is one of those rare souls who can be pious and not intolerant. All in all he seems a wonderfully well balanced character, not led by whims and not to be driven at all."

"Pius XI, if God spares him, amid so many difficulties, will have a record of substantial accomplishments—not spectacular, perhaps, but genuine."

"Depressed, But Hopeful"
"I found the European churchman somewhat depressed but hopeful. Vienna and Graz looked saddened and aged. No wonder. Cardinal Pili and Cardinal Czernoch, as well as the cardinals of Cologne and Munich, were overflowing with gratitude for all that America has done for the poor and suffering of their countries."

"What of Europe? Alas, things are very very bad—not so much on the surface for apparently there is gaiety enough—whistling to keep up courage."

"The bravery of the Italians in the face of present conditions is nothing short of heroic. Everybody was looking forward to the Genoa conference with hope. But occasionally I heard skeptic comments 'Wait and see'—mere talk and mere dinners and for the rest nothing."

"Everybody knows that while these mutual suspicions and hatreds and distrusts are kept up nothing will come but worse conditions—more poverty and more disorder with possible anarchy."

"But who is going to change this attitude of unfriendliness and distrust? It is a moral problem. Who can solve it? The church—but who is listening to the church among the ruling classes? They are listening, on the contrary, to the stump speeches which every sane man knows to be rubbish."

Italian Patient

"I have heard that Europeans were grumbling at American aloofness. In Italy I did not hear this. Italians as far as I saw and heard them are wonderfully patient and not embittered. They naturally wish that there were less stump speeches and more real action but they are between two fires and can only be calm which in the main they are."

"The long government crisis was a great trial in their patience. But even at last came forth from the chaos and there is hope that his name is a good omen. Europe is tired of mere words and wants deeds."

"At all the various ports which we touched, visit in all, the shipping was all tied up—boats rusting at the wharves. We met almost no boats carrying anything but tourists. It was depressing. No interchange of trade; even the tourists purchased little of any value. Depression everywhere and everyone hoping and waiting with a waning patience."

"Everyone in Europe wants America to enter the arena and settle things. Will she? Can she? Ought she?"

"I still cannot answer. 'Surely, however, what she can do she must find a way to do. For Europe is clearly at the end of her resources. Either Europe will join all her forces and put aside hatred and distrust or Europe for a generation will sit amid ruins.'"

TOMORROW'S FLAPPER IS DEMURE TODAY

In these years that fall between toddlerhood and flapperdom, the demure school days, little girls are not cruelly abandoned and neglected by Dame Fashion. Indeed, some very charming modes are evolved just for the betwixt-and-between little girl of eight or nine or ten.

A quaint frock is one with a square

neck, a straight and severe little bodice, lacing primarily up the front, and a full gathered skirt stitched to the bodice and worn without girder or belt of any description. For a slender little girl this short-waisted model is interesting because of its very simplicity.

An idea borrowed from her mother's newest frock is the long-waisted effect and the clever scheme of bringing a little up-and-down fullness into soft little folds on the under-arm seam. This is equally effective in jersey frocks, which are so much liked for school frocks for girls, or in other soft materials.

What is the Matter With Lowell? IS IT AN OUT-OF-TOWN TOWN?

Some time ago there was a question of a Slogan for Lowell. Out of the discussion came some ad such as "If you buy out of town and we buy out of town, what will become of our town?"

We wrote some comment on this slogan at the time, but did not publish it. But as it fits in with the series of ads we have published lately about buying in Boston, we give it to you without a change of word. We wrote that it was a poor Slogan. That it had the poor mouth sound to it. That a Slogan to be effective must have an exultant, victorious, triumphant, conquering sound to it. (Oh! for an inspiration to coin one!) Of course, one might say many things in favor of even this poor slogan. It might awaken some people who are not too egoistical to say to themselves, if not to others: I earn my living in Lowell and will spend my money in Lowell. It might awaken some people to at least look over the stock of Lowell merchants before buying in Boston. And there is such a thing as loyalty to your city. And if Tom, Dick and Harry buys of you or employs you or is the source of your income; don't you feel just a little less than loyal when you take that money to Boston to spend for goods Tom, Dick and Harry has in his store, without even asking them their price, and don't you feel mighty cheap when you find that your loyal neighbor has bought the same goods of Tom, Dick and Harry for less than you paid in Boston, which is a fact nine times out of ten. No, they don't sell cheaper in Boston because they can't. The cost of doing business is too much more to be offset by larger volume. Percent of expenses to per cent of sales absolutely prevents it. The sheer force of inexorable economies prevents it. And yet, some people buy out of town, industries go out of town for managers, fellows go out of town for girls, when we have the finest in the world right here in Lowell. And you have the best and fairest dealing Furniture Store anywhere to fit up a home for her in.

WIRELESS EXPERTS FORSEE MARINE RADIO RECEIVING SETS RADIO WITHOUT AERIAL

By N.E.A. Service
WASHINGTON, April 24.—Radio communication with ships at sea without the use of aerials may soon be accomplished.

This advancement is suggested by government and private wireless experts here who have been working to simplify radio transmitting and receiving apparatus.

That it is a possibility has been demonstrated at recent tests made by Maj. Gen. George O. Squier, in charge of the United States army air service. At these experiments, General Squier showed he could receive radio signals over land without using any antenna.

Land Line as Aerial

Instead of catching the wireless waves by means of a special aerial, General Squier attached the radio receiving set to an electric light line. The land line acted as his aerial.

In the same way, experts here suggest there is a possibility of sending and receiving radio messages over sea with no antenna to transmit or receive.

them. In fact, progress has already been made toward eliminating ship antennae.

A few years ago, submarines were handicapped by the clumsy masts and wires they had to carry for their antennae. In submerging, these aerials had to reach above the surface. They were easy tell-tales for enemy craft during the war.

Aerial Below Water

By experiment and research, government wireless engineers found a way to bring the aerial under the surface with the submarine, so that nothing but the periscope showed. They had found that radio waves could travel just as well through water as through air. The latest type submarine now has its antenna stretched close to the deck, without any masts or cross-arms to hinder it in submerging.

Now the radio experts are considering the electric lines with the submarine or ocean liner, which might be used to catch radio signals as effectively as the land electric light lines.

Bureau of Standards Says Elimination of Storage Battery Now Possible

Elimination of the storage battery, the most expensive part of the home made radio receiving set, is now possible according to the bureau of standards of the department of commerce in a statement released today.

The receiving sets which are now used in receiving radio signals, music, etc., over distances of perhaps hundreds of miles require a storage battery to light the filaments of the electron tubes. The battery must be charged from time to time, it is bulky and heavy, the acid in it is a source of danger and damage to the household and altogether it constitutes a drawback to the general use of radio sets.

The receiving set developed by the bureau of standards makes connection with the ordinary electric lamp socket. The set may be used with any type of antenna, i. e., with the ordinary elevated wire antenna, a coil antenna, or special forms of antenna. By special modes of connection, it is even possible to use the electric light wires themselves as the antenna, but these signals are likely to come in with less strength when this is done.

The receiving set consists essentially of an amplifier with minor auxiliary parts. This is described in a paper which has been prepared and will be published by the bureau of standards about the first of May, and sold at 5 cents a copy. A few details of the amplifier, which utilizes 60-cycle current supply for both filaments and plates of the electron tubes, are as follows: This amplifier has three radio-frequency stages and two audio-frequency stages, and uses a crystal detector. The 60-cycle current when used in an ordinary amplifier circuit introduces a strong 60-cycle note which offers serious interference.

This has been practically eliminated by balancing resistances, grid condensers and special grid leaks of comparatively low resistance, telephone transformer in the output circuit, and crystal detector. Instead of electron tube detector in the final form of the amplifier, there is only a slight residual hum which is not objectionable. The amplification obtained with a 6 supply was as good as that obtained with the same amplifier used with d. c. supply. The complete unit is light, compact and portable. For the reception of damped waves, the amplifier as constructed operated most satisfactorily for wave lengths from 200 to 750 meters. This range was determined by the working range of the radio-frequency transformers used. By using suitable radio-frequency transformers, it is expected that the amplifier will be effective for the reception of damped waves and undamped waves as long as 10,000 meters. For the reception of undamped waves, a separate heterodyne should be employed. The paper gives

Stage All Set for New England's First Big Radio Show

Trans-Atlantic Station Will Receive Messages From France and Wales

BOSTON, April 24.—A four-day carnival of broadcast "listening-in" of radio lectures, demonstrations, unique "stunts" and prize contests will mark the Boston Radio exposition, to be held, beginning May 3, in Mechanics building, Boston. Not only will this be the first big general radio show New England has had, but, as indicated by the response from both exhibitors and public, will be the largest ever held in America.

Among features not before offered in radio shows will be a systematic educational display, a radio "path of knowledge," broadcasting entirely within the exhibition hall, and a demonstration of radio piloting by the use of a land station, a ship station and a station inside the hall. There will also be in operation a transatlantic wireless receiving station which will receive code messages from France and Wales.

In the series of educational booths, through which visitors will pass in order, will be shown graphically radio theory and results in a way calculated to inform thousands of laymen on wireless matters more thoroughly than is possible by spoken or written description. An army of recent radio recruits in New England, as well as the "old timers," is looking forward to the interior broadcasting, as only a small percentage of those who have "listened in" have ever observed the operation of a broadcast station.

In the program, featuring either in person by radio, will be a number of nationally and internationally known radio experts, public men, and broadcast entertainers who have previously been heard but not seen by radio enthusiasts. It is expected that Charles P. Steinmetz will have something to say, either on radio topics or descriptive of his "artificial lightning." Scarcely less interest is shown in the assured appearance of Earl C. Hansen, the youthful inventor whose adaptations of the vacuum tube have been of vast benefit both in the radio and in other scientific fields. It is expected he will tell about recent experiments and about his vacuum tube, the super-sensitive tube which has been shown to all levels of radio.

Receiving of broadcasts, from practically all stations in the eastern part of the country and by a large number of sets, will be accomplished through the use of loop antennae inside the hall—a point insisted upon by the management in order more effectively to show the public the great capabilities of wireless in "going through" instead of over and around dense substances.

A novel demonstration by H. R. Cheatham of Somerville will prove to doubters that "wireless wire tapping" though not practicable under ordinary circumstances, is entirely possible. Among the non-commercial exhibits will be a number of ancient (that is, for radio) sets and bits of apparatus, some of which, like the condenser jars used on the Carpathia at the time of the Titanic disaster, have historical significance.

The show will be opened the afternoon of May 3 by Mayor James M. Curley of Boston, who will greet the visitors by radio from a station nearby, and later appear in person. It is expected that his opening remarks will be heard by those listening radio fans who are not at the first day's session over a radius of 1000 miles. The second night will "Governor's Night," with Governor Channing H. Cox as guest of honor.

TELEPHONE RECEIVER TOO WEAK FOR RADIO

BY R. L. DUNCAN
Director, Radio Institute of America
The head piece of a radio set is much more sensitive than the receiver of a land line telephone.

It has to be, for the wireless currents are often much weaker than the feeblest sounds on the telephone. The telephone, as used in wireless reception, converts the electrical energy sent through the air into sound energy, after the incoming oscillations have been rectified by a detector.

The resistance of the phones should not be less than 2000 ohms. Three thousands ohm receivers are better, of course, but they are more expensive.

Construction

This resistance depends upon the number of turns of wire on the pole pieces. As seen by the accompanying sketch, there is a "C" shaped soft iron magnet upon which are placed two small forms insulated from it.

The magnet is of soft iron because it is so easily magnetized.

Upward of 10,000 turns of extremely fine wire, fine as hair, are wound in coils on the small forms. In addition to the permanent iron magnet and the two coils is a very thin iron or mica diaphragm which fits on top of the coils and is held in place by the permanent magnetism of the soft iron magnet.

After the incoming signals have been rectified by the detector they pass into the windings of the phone and there create a magnetic field which increases the field of the permanent magnet. The magnetism thus created depends upon the purity and number of turns of wire in the coils.

While wireless telephones are usually rated in terms of their total resistance it is really the number of circuit diagrams, and states the value of the condensers, resistors and inductors used.

Elimination of Storage Battery, Most Expensive Part of Set, Now Possible

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Elimination of the storage battery, the most expensive part of the home made radio receiving set, is now possible, according to the bureau of standards of the department of commerce.

The receiving set developed by the bureau of standards, makes connection with the ordinary electric lamp socket. The set may be used with any type of antenna and special modes of connection, it is even possible to use the electric light wires themselves as the antenna.

The receiving set consists essentially of an amplifier with minor auxiliary parts. It is described in a paper which has been prepared and will be published by the bureau of standards about May 1.

turns of wire rather than the resistance that determines the sensitivity obtained.

There is no direct electrical connection between the diaphragm and the rest of the telephone. But the additional magnetism created by the incoming signal increases the pull on the diaphragm and makes it vibrate.

These signals are intermittent. As the current stops or reverses, its direction the pull on the diaphragm is lessened. As the action is repeated over so rapidly, the vibrations of the diaphragm are strong enough to cause sounds by their attraction and release from the coils.

A composition rubber cap with a small hole in the center is screwed over the top of the diaphragm to hold it in place when the magnetism is lessened and makes the phone fit easily over the ear.

AUTOS CRASH ON CANAL BRIDGE

Two Ford automobiles, one a taxi and the other a runabout, collided on the canal bridge in East Merimack street this morning and as a result one woman was injured and one of the machines was damaged. The collision occurred at about 9.30 o'clock, while the machines were going in opposite directions.

The autos that figured in the accident were a taxicab owned by the Depot Taxi Cab Co., and operated by Ernest J. Bradley, and a runabout operated by A. L. Sturtevant of 32 Brookside street, this city. In the taxi were Joseph Curran and Lillian Curran, both claiming their home as Peterboro, N. H. The woman received slight injuries to her arm by being thrown against the side of the machine. The Sturtevant auto had one of its rear wheels smashed.

Bill to Increase Certain Benefits Reported Favorably by Legislative Committee

(Special to The Sun)
BOSTON, April 24.—A bill of great interest to workmen, because it increases certain of the benefits under the workmen's compensation act, has been reported favorably by the legislative committee on judiciary, and seems certain of passage at the present session of the legislature.

The proposed legislation contemplates the payment of larger benefits to widows with minor children, in case the husband and father is killed in industry under circumstances which bring his death within the provisions of the compensation act.

Ever since the compensation law was passed, widows left with children under such circumstances have been allowed but $10 a week, and in many cases it has been absolutely impossible for the mother to rear her family on such wages as she might herself earn, plus the allowance of $10 a week. Now it is proposed that the allowance shall be proportionate to the number of children.

Several bills designed to accomplish this purpose were submitted to the legislature this year, and out of the mass the committee has drafted an entirely new bill, which reads:

"If death results from the injury, the insurer shall pay the following dependents of the employee wholly dependent upon his earnings for support at the time of his injury compensation as follows: To the widow, so long as she remains unmarried, $16 a week in and so long as there are more than two children of the employee who are under the age of 18, or over said age and physically or mentally incapacitated from earning, $14 a week if and so long as there are two such children, $12 a week if and so long as there is one such child, and $10 a week if and so long as there is no such child; and, if the widow dies, so such children in equal shares, $16 a week if and so long as there are more than three such children, $14 a week if and so long as there are three such children, $12 a week if and so long as there are two such children, and $10 a week if and so long as there is one such child; but if the widow remarries, the afore-child payments to her shall terminate, and the insurer shall pay each week to each of such children, if and so long as there are more than five, his or her proportionate part of $16, and shall pay to each of such children, if and so long as there are five or less, $3 a week. The period covered by the payments provided for by the foregoing provisions of this section shall not be longer than 500 weeks. When weekly payments have been made to an injured employee before his death, compensation under the foregoing provisions of this section shall begin from the date of the last of such payments and shall not continue more than 400 weeks from the date of the injury.

In all other cases of total dependency, the insurer shall pay the dependents of the employee wholly dependent upon his earnings for support at the time of the injury a weekly payment equal to two-thirds of his average weekly wages, but not more than $10 nor less than $4 a week for a period of 500 weeks from the date of the injury; but in no case shall the amount be more than $4000. If the employee leaves dependents only partially dependent upon his earnings for support at the time of the injury, the insurer shall pay such dependents a weekly compensation equal to the same proportion of the weekly payments for the benefit of persons wholly dependent as the amount contributed by the employee to such partial dependents bears to the annual earnings of the deceased at the time of his injury. When weekly payments have been made to an injured employee before his death, the compensation under this paragraph to dependents shall begin from the date of the last of such payments, but shall not continue more than 500 weeks from the date of the injury."

2000 lbs. FISH

TO BE DISTRIBUTED

Absolutely Free

To needy persons bringing us an order from the City Poor Department, Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army or other authorized charitable organizations, we will distribute 2000 lbs. of absolutely fresh shore haddock.

We know that in every city in the Country today there are people who, through slack work, sickness or other unusual conditions, are finding it very difficult to get along.

Lowell is no exception to the rule, but Lowell, nevertheless, has been most cordial and generous to us. The Buying Public has saved a great many dollars since we opened, through our low prices and the cuts that have been made elsewhere to meet our prices.

Now we wish to extend a bit of consideration to those less fortunate than ourselves and our many customers.

We only require that those who apply should really need the help, and with this view, we ask that an order for the fish be obtained through the City Poor Department, Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army, or any authorized charitable organization. The fish will average about 3 lbs. apiece, and only one fish will be allowed to each family. If there are children in the family, say so when presenting your order and we will see that you get one of the larger fish.

Distribution will begin at 8.30 Tuesday morning, April 25th, and will continue during the day until the lot is completely gone.

People receiving this free fish are under no obligation to buy any other article.

REPUBLICANS TARIFF MAD

Republican newspapers are very severe in their criticism of the tariff bill now before the senate, on account of the unusually high rates imposed upon practically all the necessities of life. This bill was passed by the house in July and was sent to the senate with all the extreme features emanating from such apostles of high protection as Fordney of Michigan and some of his co-workers in their farmers' bloc. Speaking of this measure the Boston Transcript says that "it gives the western producers all they want on wheat, hides and wool, never minding whether the manufacturer gets compensatory protection on his products or not." The same paper says in reference to the measure: "Party guidance is thrown to the winds." This is undoubtedly due to the prevalent chaotic conditions not only of interests, but of views.

The New York Tribune assails the measure as having rates higher than those of the Payne-Aldrich act of 1912 that caused the defeat of President Taft. The same paper states that this is no time for the party to go tariff mad, while other authorities state that the bill is one "written by special interests, for such interests with little regard for the plain people of the country; and it takes no prophet to foretell what its enactment will cost the republican party, responsible for it."

Such are a few of the opinions expressed by republican papers relative to this measure. The democratic newspapers are still more severe; and they are of one mind on the fact that it will cause a great increase in the cost of living and enable certain interests to embark upon a period of profiteering fully as bad as any conducted during the war period. It is observed also, that the effect of this bill would be to prevent the nations indebted to the United States from paying us what they owe. They cannot pay in gold and this measure would prevent them paying in commodities. It would also lead to retaliatory measures by other nations and thus injure our foreign trade.

One of the worst features of the bill is the high tariff imposed upon sugar, which is said to be as near to public plunder as anything can be in the line of a tariff. Rep. Fordney of Michigan framed the sugar schedule which is to every American consumer. Only 10,000 of the 260,000 farmers of Michigan grow beets. But 3,500,000 Michigan people are asked to contribute several million dollars for the benefit of the stockholders in sugar mills, with but a slight indirect benefit to the beet growers. What is true of Michigan in this respect is equally true of other states except that many of them have a larger population and no raisers of beets.

The Tariff on Hides

Still another and even a worse feature is the high tax upon hides, ostensibly for the benefit of the farmers; but in reality it would benefit only the packers who buy the cattle for the meat and not for the hides. It is a well known fact that the farmers seldom derive any benefit from an increase in the price of hides. It is estimated that the tariff imposed upon hides would result in an increase of from 75 cents to a dollar in the price of every pair of shoes. As a result the shoe industries are assisting in favor of the hides. The American Farm Bureau has filed a brief with the commerce committee urging that hides, leather and leather products should remain on the free list. It is pointed out further that in all the tariff bills of the past, with the exception of the period from 1897 to 1909, hides were on the free list. McKinley, Dingley, Blaine and Payne were all on record against a tariff on hides and refused to have it inserted in the bills which they respectively sponsored.

It is pointed out that the United States does not raise cattle enough to supply the demand for hides. The annual consumption of hides in this country is about 1,350,000 pounds and the production, about 1,200,000 pounds, or 45 per cent short of the total consumption. It is estimated that the tariff on hides as proposed would bring in a revenue of about $16,000,000, which is added to the cost of shoes and leather products about $16,000,000.

This is a field in which the people will have to take an active part in appealing to their congressmen and senators to put hides on the free list. The campaign has already been launched by the National Shoe Retailers' association and the National Association of Hide Manufacturers. They want the people to demand the removal with letters and importunities for a provision in the tariff bill for free hides that will result in a lower price of shoes and leather products. Otherwise, the price of footwear, already too high, will go back to the high levels of war days when it was almost robbery to buy a decent pair of shoes.

IMPROVED BUSINESS CONDITIONS

Today the Guaranty Trust company of New York gives out the result of an economic survey which has much on which to base a very hopeful view of the industrial situation. The survey does not base its opinions on favorable factors alone, but upon a balance of them over the unfavorable, which is the conservative method. Yet this shows beyond peradventure a very material gain in business progress during the last month and very notably over the conditions that prevailed over early in the present month. The facts in the case indicate a steady upward tendency based upon healthy economic conditions. One of the outstanding proofs of an industrial improvement is the greater activity in the steel industry, the improved railway situation and the upward trend shown by the stock market. The stock market is generally a good business barometer for those who know how to interpret its fluctuations. It is a fact that the dealers in securities foresee the coming of improved conditions and act upon anticipation of what is to come, whereas the ordinary business man waits until he sees the improvements with his own eyes. He doesn't speculate but waits for realization. The steel industry is now operating at 75 per cent of its capacity as against 40 per cent at the first of the year. The credit situation is better and the greater approach to balanced price levels has restored buying confidence even among the farmers, who had been holding off awaiting substantial reductions in the price of the commodities they wanted to buy. The rise in the price of agricultural products—cotton, grain and livestock—has enabled the farmers to escape severe losses on surplus stocks and given them increased purchasing power. Thus much of the discontent among this class has been overcome and with it the demand for dangerous class legislation.

The shadow that hangs over American industry at present is the coal strike, which, if prolonged, would seriously affect the whole situation. If some it is said the strike will be more easily settled if allowed to continue for some weeks longer. Only the enemies of the strikers would make such a statement. Another backset here in New England is found in the textile strikes, which should have been settled long ago in the interest of all concerned; but the manufacturers stand firmly on their demand for a 20 per cent cut. If these strikes were all settled, the outlook for steady business would be the best since the close of the world war.

MRS. ROGERS HONORED

President Harding has recognized the services of Mrs. John Jacob Rogers and her devotion to the cause of the disabled veterans, in appointing her to make a tour of inspection of the hospitals in the east and the south in which soldiers are under treatment. This covers not only government but private hospitals. It will be a very laborious task, but Mrs. Rogers will bring to it a degree of sympathy and devotion that will make the work light and agreeable. She has already won distinction among the women of Washington because of her services in aid of the disabled veterans at the Walter Reed Military hospital in that city. The president could not select any woman for this work who has a fuller or more sympathetic knowledge of the needs of the veterans. Her report will doubtless give the president a clear and complete account of the shortcomings of the hospital service and what should be done to remedy the existing defects.

CORRECT WEIGHT

A weighing machine, so delicately adjusted that it immediately detects the withdrawal of a single steel rivet from a 250,000-ton steamship!

This is the latest achievement by Hinde Santa Bureau of Standards. It is described in scientific circles as "the most precise work of its kind in many years."

Man is getting the art of measurement down finally when, in comparing a couple of one-pound weights, he can detect a difference of a billionth.

Yet in that most important form of measurement—determining relative values of human energy expended on different things—we are making very little progress.

Observe how to measure human energy and the relative values of what it produces, and you have the key to the just distribution of wealth.

THE FARMER'S SHARE

Speaking of overhead and excess business: The Census Bureau adds up and reports that the value of all American farm products raised in 1919 was $21,425,628,514.

The income of all Americans contributed in the same year was $45,000,000,000, or over three times the farmers' income.

That is a very fair showing for the farmer who produces a large portion of the food we eat; but there are a great many other lines of business, such as mining, transportation, manufacturing, merchandising, education, government, foreign commerce, and the professions of public life, law, medicine and religion. When all these are considered and get only twice as much as the farmer, it seems that the latter has no room for complaint.

More important, though, is the health that will come to the garden tiller who plants the seeds. The city folk who don't have a garden in overclopping a rural health asset.

The Locke and Canale company has done the proper thing in accepting the city's offer of $20,000 for the first street oval. Now let the work of laying out the park begin.

Nevertheless and notwithstanding, quite a number of the owners will build on a limited scale pending a change of base on the part of the building trades.

The motorcycle speedster courts death and is a menace to all who use the highways.

SEEN AND HEARD

Easy-going men often stay.

It is hard to love thy neighbor when his children love thy garden.

In the spring a young man's fancy turns to easels.

Eat, drink and be cautious or tomorrow the undertaker will come.

Europe is going to have peace if she has to fight to get it.

Thought for Today

Life is to be considered happy, not in warding off evil, but in the acquisition of good; and this we should seek for by some form of employment or by reflection.

Some Day, Was Jimmy

Jimmy, somewhat of a braggart, was telling his father and mother of his experience while camping. "And all at once I stepped right on a big rattlesnake," he began. "How did you know it was a rattlesnake, Jimmy?" asked his father skeptically. "I could hear its teeth chattering the minute it saw me."

A Word a Day

Today's word is exasperate. It's pronounced—ex-za-sar-ay—with an accent on the second syllable. It means—to irritate, to annoy, to make bitter, to exasperate. It comes from the Latin "exasperare," to irritate. Companion word—exasperation. It's used like this—"Service men were exasperated when they returned home and found themselves jobless."

Cook Filled Her

The young wife entered the kitchen rather nervously and said to the cook: "You better watch out, because my husband is always complaining. One day it is the soup and the next it is the fish, and the third day it is the meat. In fact, it's always something." The cook replied with feelings: "Well, mum, I'm sorry for you. It must be awful to live with a gentleman like that."

He Was Too Busy

Pa and ma have a small store on Main street in a very small town in Indiana. They live in a room back of their store, where ma generally holds forth. One evening about 6 o'clock, burglars entered the store and worked quickly, efficiently and quietly. Pa put up his hands in a futile effort to "get 'em up" and stood that way while the "rush" was on. Ma, all unconscious of the "stunt" going on in front, sat in a rocking chair and rocked. Pa didn't move or utter a sound, and the burglars were too busy to care, but when ma called a second time and commanded: "Pa, come here immediately," as Pa looked at her and saw he was called back: "I can't come now, ma, I'm too busy."—Indianapolis News.

Cause of Divorce

Pierce Van Vleet, the Baltimore divorcee, said at a dinner party: "Keep a husband in hot water will never make him tender. Ignorance of this primary truth causes a lot of divorces. A husband who is a fool and a piggy day in anything but a tender mood. His wife, because he could not afford her an $800 suit of Siberian rat, had snatched the morning paper out of his hand, called him a knave and knave, and thrown his freshly opened package of cigars into the stove. So this man, his mood not at all tender, got in the car and took a seat beside a gaunt, raw-boned woman of 60 or so. This woman started an altercation with the conductor when he came to make the ticket. The woman looked around the car and shrieked: 'Is there a gentleman on this car who will stand by and let a lady be treated like this?' The non-tender chap was at his best at once. 'Yes, ma'am,' he said gruffly, 'I will.'"

Contrast

The poet in his garret sat;
His life was an exiled world,
Where evils blessings seem.
His mind was filled with noble thoughts
And his heart was full of love and Tenderness for his fellow men.
And all his soul with flame.

The rich man drove his motor,
Of travel and of world;
No wish he had was unfulfilled,
No whim of his denied.
He would have secured the poet, if
By chance the poet had been
Yet which one got the most from life?
The rich man says: "You best!"

JUDGE LANDIS' BROTHER DEAD

ASHEVILLE, N. C., April 24.—Charles B. Landis, former member of congress from Indiana and for a number of years an official of the Du Pont Powder Co., died here early today. Judge Kenneth Mountain Landis, his brother, was on route to his bedside when death came.

HOW TO PRESERVE EGGS

By the use of Water Glass (Sodium Silicate) it is possible to preserve eggs for months. The Water Glass has no chemical action on the eggs but keeps out the air.

Use one gallon of Water Glass and nine gallons of water. One quart of Water Glass will make enough liquid for a five-gallon crock full of eggs. Place eggs in crock and pour the solution over them until they are covered.

The eggs should be absolutely fresh, not three or four days old. They should be kept in a cool place.

Water Glass has nothing harmful in it. When taken out of the solution, use clear water to wash eggs.

BERTON BRALEY'S DAILY POEM

"Long skirts shall be the fashion,"
Said Paris, with a smile,
"And women, with their passion
For following the style,
Will wear their dresses flowing
About their feet—ah oui!
No ankles shall be showing,
For such is our decree!"

But when the Yankee women
Received this fashion news
They showed a lot of vim in Expressing other views:
"What could be more annoying
Than skirts as long as these
When we have been enjoying Full freedom of the knees!"

"The mere suggestion rankles;
Though Paris says we must,
We will not bind our ankles
With skirts that wrap the dust!
Our feet we will utter
(We don't do things by halves),
We won't wear skirts that clutter
Our liberated calves!"

"We say, in manner breezy,
And with a spirit gay,
We will be free and kneezy,
We'll wear the short and snappy,
So loudly we're assailing
A fashion of that sort,
Though Paris skirts be trailing
We're gonna keep 'em short!"

TO ERECT SEMINARY

Montreal Selected as Site for

Seminary to Prepare

Missionaries

QUERBEC, April 24.—A pastoral letter issued by Cardinal Beaudry and signed by all the archbishops and bishops of the province, was read in the Roman Catholic churches of this city Sunday, announcing that a seminary for the education and preparation of priests for foreign missions would be founded in Montreal.

It was explained that the matter had been discussed thoroughly by the archbishops and bishops of the province of Quebec and that it was decided that Canada could now think of evangelizing other countries. The project of founding a seminary to prepare missionaries received the approval of Cardinal Van Rossum, prefect of the Sacred Congregation of Propaganda. The institution will bear the name of "The Seminary of St. Francis Xavier," in honor of the saint who gave his life to missionary work.

HELD ENTERTAINMENT IN COLLEGE HALL

A very enjoyable entertainment was given at St. Joseph's college hall in Merrimack street last evening, when a group of pupils of the higher grades presented a delightful four-act drama entitled "Claude Bernard." The affair, which was given under the direction of Rev. Bro. Francis, superior of the college, was successful in every way. The attendance was large and the program was very pleasing.

Between the acts choral selections were given by the school chorus, a dumb ball exhibition was given by a group of pupils from the sixth grade. There were also violin selections by H. Ouellette and a playlet by pupils of the fifth grade.

Those who took part in the drama were Raymond Tremblay, Henri Durand, Albert Trudel, Raymond Alexander, Sylvio Desrochers, George Lamoreaux, Wilfrid Breton, Legrand Loblant, Wilfrid Vallier, Arthur Milot, Wilfrid Desrochers, Albert Beauregard, Maurice Borden, Constantine Goulet, Gerard Goyette, George St. Jean, Edward Gauthier, Maynard Michaud, Joseph Thibault, Emile Tessier and Florent Gauthier.

Seated in the audience were numerous Marist brothers as well as the following clergymen: Very Rev. J. E. Turcotte, O.M.I., Rev. Aurelien Mercier, O.M.I., Rev. E. J. Carrier, O.M.I., Rev. Charles Desrochers, O.M.I., Rev. Lucien Bessard, O.M.I., and Rev. Joseph A. Bolduc, O.M.I., all of St. Joseph's and Rev. Joseph Denis, O.M.I., Notre Dame de Lourdes. The ushers were Victor Alexander and George Marchand, Jr. J. L. Guilbault was the accompanist.

TO ERECT $1,300,000 SCIENCE BUILDING

WASHINGTON, April 24.—Plans for the erection in Washington of a $1,300,000 building as the home of the National Academy of Sciences and the National Research Council, and a center for American science in all its fields, were announced today by Dr. C. L. Walcott, president of the National academy, at the opening session of a meeting here. The building, which is expected to be completed by a year from next fall, Dr. Walcott said, is a gift of the Carnegie Foundation of New York. Facing the Lincoln Memorial, in Potomac park, from the north, the structure, it was said, will be of simple classical style, rising three stories from a broad terrace and having a frontage of 280 feet.

A FINE ENTERTAINMENT

Choice Musical Program Features April Meeting of

Catholic Women's League

Magnificent rendition of well chosen vocal and instrumental selections, with a pretty fantasy exquisitely reproduced, featured the April meeting of the League of Catholic Women, held yesterday afternoon in Associate hall. The musical program was given exclusively by Boston artists. The hall, filled to capacity with league members and friends, continually manifested their appreciation by prolonged applause.

Mrs. John MacGillivray, a contralto of exceptional charm, sang two numbers, "Rememberance" and "Her Dream." Her accompanist was Mrs. Daly.

Two excellent groups of songs were rendered by Miss Mary Tracey, a gifted lyric soprano. In her first group were "Villanelle" and "The Wind Storm," while the second comprised "From the Land of the Sky-Blue Water" and "My Little House." She was accompanied by Miss Plunkett.

Mr. Edward J. Downey's splendid tenor won his audience from the opening selection to the close, and although he sang no less than five beautiful numbers he received fully as generous applause as his first. In his first group he rendered "All Erin is Calling," "Mavourneen," and "Longinus, That's All." Later he sang "There is No Death," "An Irish Lullaby," and "Be-Heve Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms." His accompanist was Miss Mary A. Flynn.

Mr. Walter Mayo, concert master at St. Wallace, demonstrated exceptional mastery of the violin, and accompanied by his sister, Miss Mayo, on piano, he gave unusually fine renditions of "Les Adieux," "Ave Maria" and "At Dawning." His work was of extremely high caliber, about the best featured in Lowell for some time.

Mrs. Edward J. Downey and Miss Rita Kelly presented "A Midnight Fantasy." The scene was the family portrait gallery of an aristocratic Boston street residence. Two portraits are shown, one of a maiden in 1750 and the other of the extremely fashionable girl of 1922. These portraits suddenly become animated, and the skill of Mrs. Downey, as the 1750 girl, and Miss Kelly, as her 1922 counterpart, was greatly enjoyed.

The president, Mrs. J. T. Donehue, called the meeting to order, and the usual communion, singing and selections by the league orchestra followed. Prayers were offered for the repose of the souls of Miss Elizabeth Lawler and Miss Agnes Fay, two of the members who have passed away since the last meeting; also, for Mrs. Mary Farrington, mother of the corresponding secretary.

An invitation was extended to all the members to attend a reception to His Eminence, Cardinal O'Connor, at the Boston Opera House, the date to be announced a little later.

With the exception of the music appreciation class and the elementary class, which have been brought to a close, the regular league classes are still in progress.

Notice of the dates of annual communion Sunday and the memorial mass for deceased members will be given in the near future.

FLEES TO JUDGE'S HOME

Unfrocked Clergyman Escapes Mob—Appeals to U.

S. Attorney for Protection

CHEYENNE, Wyo., April 24.—Declaring that he had been compelled to seek refuge in the home of District Judge John A. Arnold to escape a mob that he said was determined to run him out of town, because of his reform activities, George Chalmers Richmond, recently unfrocked clergyman of Evanston, Wyo., has appealed to the United States attorney for protection.

Recently, it is said, Richmond demanded that Prosecuting Attorney Abe Crawford of Uinta county be removed from office for alleged neglect of law enforcement.

According to affidavits from Evanston, the mob Richmond complained of was a mass meeting of citizens held to discuss his utterances concerning the town and its citizens. A committee, it is said, informed Richmond that he must leave town.

Richmond formerly held important positions in Philadelphia and Rochester, N. Y.

"DYNAMITE" SHIP SOLD TO CHELSEA JUNKMAN

WASHINGTON, April 24.—The old navy "dynamite" ship Vesuvius, in Spanish war days hailed as the possible pioneer craft of a new naval era for the world, has been sold as junk to J. Lipsitz of Chelsea, Mass., for $4200. Like many other novel craft which were expected to sweep all battleships from the seas as the Morrhams and Monitor wrote the doom of wooden hulls, the "dynamite ship" failed utterly and was discarded.

The Vesuvius carried three dynamite guns, thrusting upward from the sweep of her forward deck. From these queer-looking weapons, operated by compressed air, huge projectiles loaded with nitroglycerine charges sufficient to blow a battleship to bits were fired, or fortification on which they landed, were to be buried. The ship itself must be aimed at the target at short range, however, as the "guns" were immovable in the decks.

As a trial in the Spanish-American war, she was ordered to hurl death and destruction into the walls of Morro Castle on the high cliffs. When, at the close range necessary, because of the low power of the air, guns the Vesuvius finally "let go," a terrible roar came back from the bluff. It shook the earth and sea and sent frightened residents of the city scurrying in fear to caves and cellars.

But it proved only to be sound. When the ship fell and examination was possible, it was found that no damage had been done.

The Vesuvius remained with the fleet throughout the war, doing patrol and dispatch boat duty.

Catholic Church News

Daylight saving time will be accepted as the standard in most of the Catholic churches next Sunday, and masses will be celebrated in accordance with the regular schedule of hours, with the exception of one or two parishes.

A two weeks' mission began at St. Peter's church yesterday under the supervision of members of the Passionist order, and will continue for two weeks; this week is devoted to the women of the parish and next week has been designated for the men. The annual mission at St. Michael's church by the Dominican fathers will begin next Sunday.

St. Patrick's church yesterday the high mass at 11 o'clock was sung by Rev. Francis L. Keenan, with Rev. Joseph A. Curtin making the announcements and delivering the sermon. It was announced that services will be conducted in accordance with the daylight saving time next Sunday. At 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening in the school hall there is to be a meeting of the Holy Name society.

Rev. Francis L. Shea sang the high mass at St. Peter's church yesterday morning marking the opening of the two weeks' mission by the Passionist fathers. Rev. F. Coleman, C.P., who is in charge of the mission, spoke at this mass. Members of the Children of Mary sodality received communion in a body at the 8:30 o'clock mass with Rev. Fr. Urban, C.P., as celebrant, assisted in giving communion by Rev. Daniel J. Keleher, Ph.D., the pastor. Mission services for the women of the parish were held at 7 o'clock last night, and will be held every evening throughout the week at 7:30. Masses will be at 5:40 and 8 o'clock every morning. Those assisting Rev. Fr. Coleman, C.P., are Rev. Fr. Daniel, C.P., Rev. Fr. Cosmos, C.P. and Rev. Fr. Urban, C.P.

The high mass at St. Michael's church yesterday was sung by Rev. Thomas J. Heagney, with Rev. Francis J. Mullin preaching the sermon. The quarterly communion of the parish conferences of the St. Vincent de Paul society throughout the city will be observed at the 8 o'clock mass next Sunday. The women's mission by the Dominican fathers will open next Sunday, and the following week will be devoted to the men. Next Sunday's services will be conducted according to the daylight saving schedule.

Rev. Fr. Norton, O.M.I., sang the high mass at the Immaculate Conception church yesterday, and the pastor, Very Rev. Lawrence F. Tighe, O.M.I., preached the sermon. It was announced that masses next Sunday would be conducted according to the old time. At the 8 o'clock mass, with the pastor, as celebrant, members of the senior branch of the Children of Mary and junior branch of the Holy Name society received communion in a body.

Rev. Francis X. McGinn, O.M.I., sang the high mass at the Church of the Sacred Heart yesterday, with Rev. John P. Flynn, O.M.I., the pastor, preaching at this and all the other masses. At the 7:30 mass, celebrated by the pastor, members of the Children of Mary sodality received communion in a body. A retreat which was opened at the Chelmsford street hospital last Thursday by Rev. Bernard Fletcher, O.M.I., was successfully closed yesterday. Dr. Francis A. Finnegan, the new director of school hygiene, will speak on school health matters before the fathers of the parish in the school hall.

Rev. William P. Brennan sang the 11 o'clock mass at St. Margaret's church yesterday, while Rev. Andrew F. O'Brien celebrated the 7:30 and 9 o'clock masses and the pastor, Rev. Charles J. Galligan, the first mass at 6 o'clock. At the early masses many of the parishioners received communion. The second in a series of what parties for the benefit of a shrine of the Blessed Virgin in the church basement chapel will be conducted in the parish hall next Friday evening by the ladies of the parish. Daylight saving time will be observed next Sunday, with masses in accordance with the revised schedule.

The Easter music was repeated at St. Columba's church yesterday at the 10:30 o'clock mass, sung by Rev. Jas. F. Somers. At the 7:30 mass the men of the parish, the altar boys and members of the Junior Holy Name society made an excellent showing, receiving communion in a body. Rev. John G. Hogan celebrated the mass. The committee in charge of the children party to be held in Associate hall May 6 held an important meeting at 3 p. m., yesterday, to further arrangements. James Gorman has been selected as chairman of the committee, with Miss Evelyn Flynn as secretary. The minstrel show to be conducted in Associate hall on May 6 is also anticipated eagerly. The affair is under the auspices of the Holy Name society, which held its regular meeting last evening.

FOR RECTORY FUND

A group of young men of this city under the direction of Joseph Larose and Alfred Baucasse will present "The Revenant," a four-act drama at St. Joseph's college hall Sunday evening, May 7, for the benefit of the new rectory for the Assumption of the parish in Pawtucketville. The play will be given under the auspices of the Circle Dramatique of Lowell.

Correct Eating Removes Cause

Robert McCarrison, of the Royal College of Physicians, London, says: "When faulty food causes stomach and intestinal disorders, vague ill health, nervousness and other symptoms that can be prevented or overcome, simply by supplying vitamins." In northern India he found no appendicitis among the natives, who ate food rich in vitamins.
Vegex is richer in Vitamin B than any other food. Twelve pounds of the richest yeast make but one pound of this delicious, appetizing food. It contains besides the Vitamin B, the essential mineral salts and phosphates necessary to nerve and gland functioning.

NASHUA DEACONS BAR MOTION PICTURE STAR

NASHUA, N. H., April 24.—Virginia Pearson, the motion picture star, who was to have spoken at the First Baptist church here last night, was prevented at the last minute, by the deacons. A crowd that filled the church and auditorium for the first time in its history appeared to hear her tell of "efforts to make the moral standard of the stage." The deacons and Odd Fellows by special invitation, were there in force.
When Rev. A. J. Archibald, the pastor, told the congregation that Miss Pearson would not be permitted to speak, many fled. The pastor explained that the deacons had instructed him to bar the actress, giving as the reason for their action "the good of the church."
Miss Pearson, who is appearing at a local theatre, said she was invited to speak at the church by the pastor. Last night I was notified that I would not be allowed to address the congregation. There was no reason given. It is apparently the work of people who think that actors and actresses are damned forever.

The Movie Fashions Satire Out of Its Own Material

VIOIRA DANIEL, SHIR'S HEROINE OF "COLD FEET," A FILM SATIRE ON THE CURWOOD STORIES.

NEW YORK, April 21.—The photograph more and more is finding within itself new ideas for screen material, especially for comedies.

If the studio and the lot furnish such literary fun as that contained in "Merton of the Movies," Harry Leon Wilson's successful novel, they certainly are in a position to furnish satire expressed in their own medium. The producers of the Christie comedies seem to have been the first to employ the movies as a theme with which to lampoon the movies. The first was "A Barnyard Cavalier," a take-off on Fairbanks' "The Three Musketeers." The newest one, recently previewed by this writer, is "Cold Feet."

"Cold Feet" pokes fun at that heavy-handed theme of the movies, the loyal Northwest Mounted Police. It is even specific in its humor, the satire being directed at the stories of James Oliver Curwood.

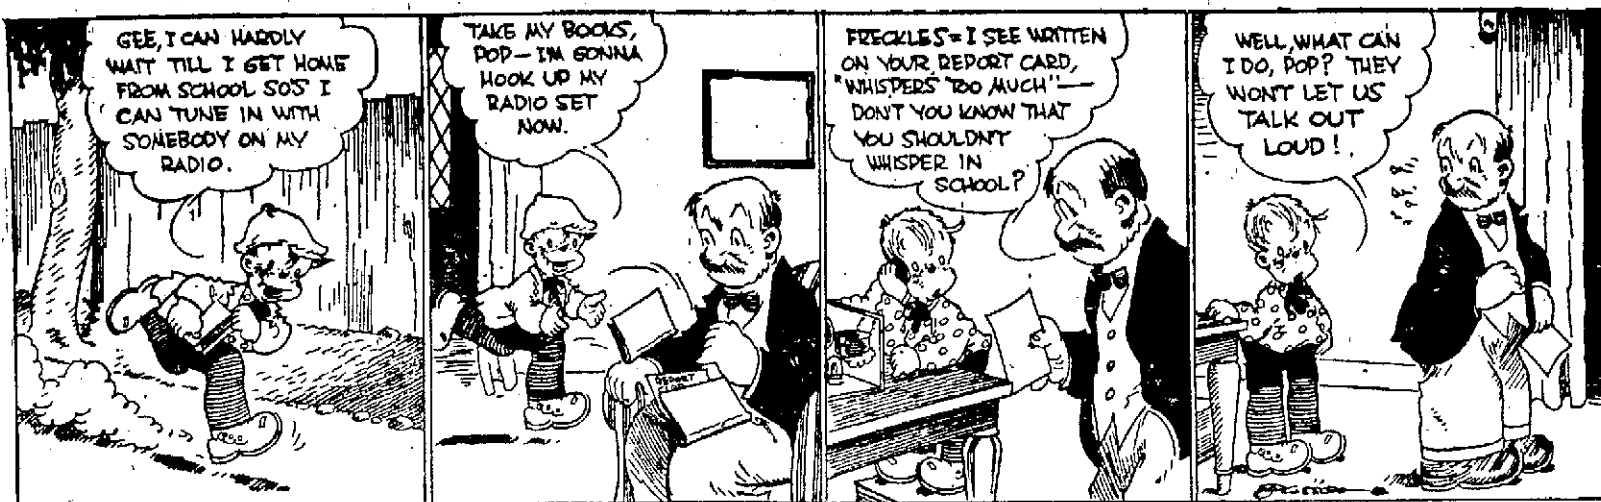

The heroine believes, through the Curwood stories, that a northwest mounted police story must have three ingredients, viz. a hero at least six feet tall and as handsome as Wally Reid, a treacherous half-breed Indian guide and a fair maiden doomed on a dog sled, pursued by hungry wolves. She sets out for her father's lumber camp to find such atmosphere. He sends word to his manager to disillusion her.

A half-breed guide meets her, driven her on a dog sled to a lonely shack. There the villain throws a fair maiden's baby to the wolves. The heroine calls for help. A sergeant of the R. N. W. M. P. comes to her assistance. He is squat and dumpy and wears big specs. As he is about to thrash the villain, a bear enters. The sergeant makes a hasty exit. So do the others.

The heroine runs after the sergeant and brings him back. The bear has gone. The villain returns and knocks the sergeant out of the saddle. A strange man enters and breaks up most of the furniture, using the body of the villain as a bludgeon. "Who are you?" demands the villain, when he comes to. "Cameron of the Mounted," he answers as the fair heroine snuggles in his arms.

You see, the villain and the sergeant and the half-breed guide were all imposters. So were the wolves, lambs dressed in wolves' clothing, so to speak.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

The third-of-a-century observance of the foundation of Keith vaudeville will be formally observed at the local B. F. Keith theatre this week, beginning this afternoon. A record of achievement such as no other theatrical enterprise in this country has ever made before will be checked off during this present week, wherever there is a theatre connected with the Keith interests, a special feature will be made of the checking of the third of a century of continuous work in the amusement line, along plans which were formulated by B. F. Keith, and which have been strictly adhered to ever since. For this present week's celebration an all-star bill has been assembled. It ought to provide the very best of pleasure.

Amy Dillon and Betty Parker in "Nic-Nacs of Now" will be at the top of the bill. They are a vaudeville team, for they look to be just what they are—the real class. Much of this undoubtedly has come through their association with musical comedies which have scored big hits in the metropolitan area. Among these are "Going Up," "Odds and Ends" and "Broadway Brevities."

A real breath of musical comedy will be wafted over the footlights with the two performers start in. It will prove unmistakable.

Boys are very much of a study, when they are just the right age. Marguerita Padula, actress on this matter, for she will devote the greater part of her act to giving her impressions of boys. It is a neat bit of work and the which has earned for her a reputation which is enviable. She has the kind of personality which is best described as being smiling. She sings, she plays and she whistles.

A thirty musical comedy is "The Three of Us," with Charles Harrison and Sylvia Dakin, supported by Billy Hogue at the piano. The comedy is a bit of fun and a bit of a satire. It is a bit of a satire on the life of a boy and a girl. It is a bit of a satire on the life of a boy and a girl.

Arthur Atill and his darlings will give a new touch of merriment and ventriloquism. "A Day on an English Farm" is the title of his bit. Frank Ward has something new. He has "Dollies," and he causes no end of laughter by putting these dollies through dances. It is one of the big novelties of the season.

Of the mushroom dancers have quit their work. Only the dullest survived the ordeal, and among those left are the dancing Kennedy sisters, who will electrify with their snappy work. Van Cello and Mary will do foot equilibria.

Vioira Daniel, the heroine, looks not unlike Anita Stewart in a recent film based on a snow story and she is just about as beautiful.

OPERA HOUSE

The second week of musical comedy at the Opera House, beginning with performances this afternoon and tonight, will introduce "The Shifters," a company of excellence in its particular line—one that has played long time in many theatrical centres of the east and middle west, and enjoyed pronounced success everywhere. It is described as "a company of musical makers, a jazzy and spectacular satire of the pseudo secret society craze that has swept the country from coast to coast as rapidly as did the chestnut bell and the 15 puzzle some years ago. The chief funmaker of the company is none other than Al Lemon, well and favorably known among local theatre-folk, the popular French Canadian dialect comedian, whose remarkable ability has won him a favored place among the best entertainers in musical comedy at the present time. Incidentally he is considered one of the best dancers on the American stage today, and has a standing offer to wear all cameras in his respective line. His challenge has stood for about two seasons and he still holds it despite several efforts to wrest the title from him.

Assisting this popular comedian is a heavy of pretty and clever girls—all young and fascinating—who know how to sing, dance and amuse with the best of the Broadway stars. Marie Camilla, a prima donna of note, possessing a wonderfully good singing voice and charming personality, heads the list of soloists, and among the others in the cast are Lillian Ray, a darling soprano; Bob Jewett, "the theatricalist of musical comedy"; Jack Ward, a comedian, and others. The singer chorus of singing and dancing girls is of various types of beauty. The chorus is a special carload of scenery and electrical effects.

Remember the show opened this (Monday) afternoon. There will be no performance Tuesday night because of the presence of the Chicago society concert, but the usual Tuesday matinee will be held. Tickets now selling. Get your reservations early and avoid disappointment. Buy the show first and don't miss anything. Box office open daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. Tel. 261.

THE STRAND

A brand of motion picture entertainment second to none in the east will be presented at the Strand for the first three days of this week, beginning with matinee today, when Alice Lake in "The Hole in the Wall" and Will Rogers in his newest comedy drama, "A Poor Relation," adapted from the popular play of the same name, head the list of features. Besides these, there is to be a regular comedy and the International Weekly, as well as delightful musical numbers by Stanor, Lessee. Future patrons will find in this offering one of the best and most varied programs of the season.

RIALTO THEATRE

Miriam Cooper in "The Oath" forms the feature attraction of the Rialto for the first three days of this week, beginning this afternoon. It is a picture all of you should see and is one which will live long in your memories. On the same program for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday is a strong story entitled "The Cave Girl," also a comedy and a set of Klugegrams.

HENNA BATH CULT BEING FORMED

LONDON, April 24.—A henna bath cult is forming among London's more ultra society women who deem olive colored skin something worth acquiring.

The craze is said to be of French or American origin. Baths, strongly tinted with henna dye, are taken monthly and impart a delicate tint which looks well with evening dresses of oriental shades and designs now popular here.

Immerging is declared to be easier than treating only that considerable portion of the body exposed by modern evening gowns.

START TO TRIAL DELAYED

120 Officers and Members of United Mine Workers of America Face Charges

CHARLESTOWN, W. Va., (By Associated Press.)—The opening of the trial of 120 officers and members of the United Mine Workers of America for the part they are alleged to have taken in the march against the non-union Logan coal field last summer, was delayed more than half an hour this morning while court attaches arranged to seat the large gathering of defendants, counsel, witnesses and newspapermen.

The Little Jefferson county district court room was crowded to capacity when the defendants filed in, and there was no room for persons not directly interested in the cases.

As soon as the arrangements had been made the charges of treason, murder, insurrection, conspiracy to commit murder and inciting, aiding and abetting murder, were read.

WAR VETERANS SUBJECT TO POLL TAX

Every Lowell veteran of every war except the Civil war will be subject to a poll tax this year, with abatements of $3 for veterans of the Spanish and World wars provided that proper applications are made within 30 days from the time tax bills are received. This means that all veterans of the Spanish and World wars will pay at least $2, with the G. A. R. members, alone, obtaining full exemption. Application blanks will be prepared by the board of assessors to be filed with the board by veterans seeking abatements. In the case of World war veterans, proof of receipt of the state's $100 bonus will be sufficient for a $3 reduction. Rates of enlistment and discharge also will be required.

This will make a great deal of extra work for the assessing department, but the ruling has come from the office of the state tax commissioner.

MAYOR HOLDS UP PINK ORDER SLIPS

Claiming that the city is being charged 50, 75 and 100 per cent. more for certain supplies than the prevailing market price to an individual or an outside firm, a number of pink order slips are being held up in the office of the mayor, although the supplies in question have been delivered, it is said.

It was intimated today that the firms who have delivered the items included in the orders will have difficulty in obtaining their money from the city.

Items that are claimed to be excessive in price include lemon pie and raspberry pie fillings at 25c, purchased for the isolation hospital and also some mince meat and fresh pork. Against the price to the city of 25 cents on pie fillings, it is said in the mayor's office that investigation showed that the best brands of both flavors can be obtained for 9 1/2 and 12 cents. The city was charged 25 cents for mince meat and this can be purchased for 14 cents, it is alleged. Fresh pork was bought for 13 1/2 cents a pound, and it is claimed that on investigation it was found that 20 cents will buy the best loin obtainable.

CATAWISSA, Pa., April 24.—Clever, a horse 51 years old is to be exhibited at the Fashion and Beauty bazaar, to be held in Madison Square Garden, New York, from May 5 to 15, his owner, Dr. T. Myers, said today. Veterinarians who recently examined the horse, said the secret of his long life was that he had retained his teeth.

WORKERS GET ORDERS

Meeting of New England Conference Board of U. T. W. Held in Maynard

Members of the United Textile Workers of America, who are employed in the various textile mills in the Merrimack valley, were given instructions yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the New England conference board of the U. T. W. of A. held in Maynard, to decide a strike as soon as notices are posted announcing either a reduction in wages or longer hours.

The meeting was attended by delegates from Lowell, Lawrence, Manchester, N. H. and Maynard as well as by International President Thomas F. McMahon and other members of the executive board of the organization. Considerable business was transacted and reports on the various strikes in various textile centers were received. The Lowell people who attended the meeting are John Hanley, Louis Shea, Edward Angus, Mrs. Annie Reagan, Walter Roche, Dana B. Hart, Joseph B. Jomery, Walter McLaughlin, Austin Kennedy, Alfred Labelle, M. Holden and Frank Balaska.

TWO SHOT IN HOLD-UP

Negro Arrested in Boston on Charge of Shooting Storekeeper and Officer

BOSTON, April 24.—Cornelius Duke, a negro, was arrested in a South End restaurant today, charged with assault with intent to kill Nathan E. Dublin, a policeman, and Patrolman William F. Harris, after an attempted hold-up in Dublin's store Saturday night.

The negro who held up Dublin shot the storekeeper once and then twice wounded Patrolman Harris, who gave chase.

MAY INSTALL FLASHING TRAFFIC BEACONS

With an idea of installing flashing traffic beacons at a number of dangerous street intersections in residential sections of the city, Acting Superintendent of Police W. C. MacBryne and a representative of the company dealing in such beacons conferred on the matter today with City Engineer Stephen Kearney.

The beacons are operated by acetylene tanks and flash 75 times a minute. A white globe with a colored band is used, so that the light color is reinforced by a wide white light margin. The beacon is composed of a cast iron base and neck cap and enameled steel plates bolted to attachments.

NEW YORK TO HONOR MARSHAL JOFFRE

Muffled His Gun So As Not to Disturb Chum, Sleeping in Same Bed

NEW YORK, April 24.—Murdering his gun, so as not to disturb his chum, sleeping in the same bed, William C. Christie, a former soldier, killed himself in his Brooklyn home early today. He had been gassed in France and had never fully recovered.

He left his war medals, showing service in Mexico and France, to Miss Elsie Pagnan of Wallingford, Conn., his fiancée, who visited him yesterday.

NO MASS. PEOPLE HURT IN WASHINGTON FIRE

(Special to The Sun) WASHINGTON, April 24.—No one from Massachusetts was injured or suffered serious loss in the fire at the Willard hotel here yesterday, although a number of people from that state were registered as guests. Owing to existing confusion in the hotel office, no list is obtainable. Vice President and Mrs. Coolidge have apartments on the third floor and when awakened by employees dressed and prepared to leave on a moment's notice. Mr. Coolidge took Mrs. Coolidge to the home of his secretary, Edward Clarke, later, the vice president returned to the Willard and remained there till 8 o'clock this morning when he joined Mrs. Coolidge at breakfast at the Clarke's. No damage was done to their apartment.

The state flag of Massachusetts and the governor's flag of that state were not harmed by the water that flooded certain parts of the hotel and the Coolidges today in no way are suffering from their unpleasant experience.

PITTSFIELD PAYS TRIBUTE TO MURDER VICTIM

PITTSFIELD, N. H., April 24.—All places of business as well as the school and the public library were closed this afternoon during the funeral services for Ralph W. Brewster, former resident of this town, who was shot to death in his office in the railroad station at Winchester, Mass., last Thursday evening.

The services, which were held at 2 o'clock in the Congregational church, were in charge of the local Masonic lodge. Delegations of Masons from Manchester, Concord and Suncook attended. Rev. W. I. Sweet, pastor of the church, officiated.

NATIONAL LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

BALTIMORE, April 24.—Conferences of committee groups of the National League of Women Voters were held today to clear the way for the opening of the third annual convention of the league tomorrow morning.

While these were going on, the delegates to the Pan-American conference of women, which ended last night with a symposium on the "Great women of all the Americas" met informally to consider a resolution proposed by the delegate from Uruguay, Senora de Vitale, suggesting a permanent Pan-American union of women.

NEW YORK, April 24.—Members of the American Arts and Letters will gather this afternoon to welcome M. Maurice Donney, director, and M. Andre Chevrillon, chancellor of the Academie Francaise, who have been sent by that body to attend the celebration here of the 300th anniversary of the birth of Moliere.

ANALYZING SEN. LODGE'S HAND WRITING

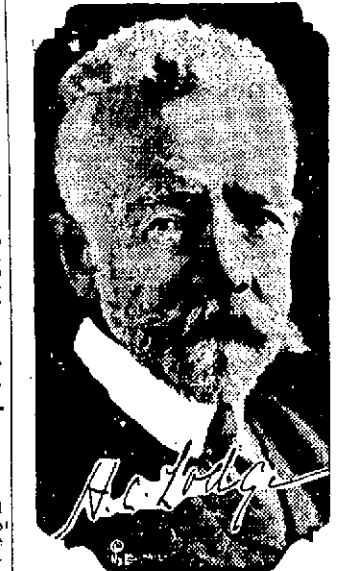

BY ALBERT J. SMITH The signature of Senator Cabot Lodge is not a true reflection of this man. It is a veil that shuts out the hidden faculties he possesses.

Examination of specimens of the senator's handwriting indicate he does not sign his name wholly as he writes. It loses much of its individuality in his signature that is strongly indicated in his script. However, there are vestiges of his personality in his autograph.

Lodge's pen marks denote the amplitude of the judicial mind, the astute investigator, the drilled jurist. They also mark the adroit politician. The strength of his capabilities lies in his powerful and deep discernment of men and things that most men of equal intelligence would fail to discover.

He is a veritable psychic in his intuitive discernment of unseen forces. He "feels" them; he senses the approach of trouble and discord. He deduces by instinct.

Disconnected Letters The graphologist gains this information from the unusual disconnections

HENRY CABOT LODGE AND HIS SIGNATURE

In the letters. These separations are due to the mental alertness of the individual, that move faster than the physical senses are able.

Men of the genius type all write the disconnected form. It denotes ripe, rapid and rhapsodic intelligence.

In Lodge's case, there is a slight modification of this rule, because of his practical training in life, but the essence of his force is manifested in most every advance made by him.

One of his modifying qualities is his great tenacity of purpose; the love of conquest and the quiet grasp of a problem. He has a quick and ready mind; he is humble-minded; judgment of matters and people is dictated by an inner consciousness rather than by any process of reasoning. He is quick of comprehension, observant, critical; little escapes his notice.

Lodge is more inspirational than he is willing to admit. He is almost an idealist for his acts and his words are largely inspirational. His oratorical powers are well developed and he is an interesting talker, with a sparkle of the dry humor possessed by men of dignified bearing.

BISHOP SCORES GIRLS' DRESS

MANCHESTER, N. H., April 24.—Rev. George Albert Guertin, bishop of the New Hampshire Catholic diocese, yesterday hotly scored women's fashions. "Modern styles in women's clothing are directly responsible for much of the turmoil in the world today," he said. The modern girl, according to the bishop, does not command the respect which should be accorded a mother.

"Can a man look at a girl dressed as so many Manchester girls are dressed with anything but disgust? Their short skirts and the low necks lead only to disrespect." The bishop denounced the "actress type" as he termed it.

The bishop pleaded for a more conservative style of feminine dress among the girls of his parish. "The woman who can win the respect of men by her modesty," he said, "can hold the respect of her children. Then women can point the way to a permanent world peace."

POUND PARTY AT CHILDREN'S HOME

The annual pound party was held at the Children's home in Manchester Saturday afternoon. A large number of friends called and brought lots of money, groceries and fruit. A musical program was given under the direction of Mrs. Hugh Green. The program was as follows: Piano solo, Miss Louise Dewey; musical selection, Misses Doris Senior, Ruth Butler; songs, Mrs. N. J. Marcotte; readings, Mrs. Hugh Green.

Wireless Payments to Passengers on Ships

NEW YORK, April 24.—The Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., today announced that arrangements had been made with the London Joint City & Midland Bank Ltd., so that wireless payments may be made at any time to passengers en route on board the Cunard liners Mauretania, Aquitania and Berengaria. Through the branch banks on board passengers may also order payments made to the Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., to persons in this country. This is believed to mark an innovation in banking methods on transatlantic ships.

Boston Bricklayers on Strike

BOSTON, April 24.—Union bricklayers on four buildings, went on strike today after employers rejected their demand for a wage of $1 an hour, an increase of 10 cents. The local that sanctioned the strike is not affiliated with the Building Trades Council, in which most of the building trades unions are represented.

REGULAR HOURS FOR AUCTION SALES

Feeling that there should be some regulation of the hours during which public auctions may be held in the city, particularly auctions of jewelry, the board of directors of the chamber of commerce this noon discussed the existing state law relative to auctions and voted to take up the matter of regulation with the board of license commissioners, whose prerogative it is to designate the hours. The idea is to do away with auctions during the hours of evening.

The directors met at the headquarters of the chamber in the Fairburn building at 12 o'clock where luncheon was served. Other business included the appointment of a committee to zoning and for the revision of the existing building code.

It was voted that the Salvation Army should use the chamber rooms for headquarters during its campaign for funds to be launched the latter part of May.
